Mrs. Roosevelt's Birthday
The Accident of Birth
Goodbye to $150,000,000?
Justice Has Changed

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY WAS Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's fiftieth birthday and every man and woman in the United States wished her many years more of life and happiness. She sets before Americans a good example of earnestness, sincerity, modesty and accomplishment.

Mrs. Roosevelt is doubly "a Roosevelt"—the wife of the President of the United States and the niece of Theodore Roosevelt, another President of the United States.

It happens that Mrs. Roosevelt at 50 looks not a day older than 35, but it also happens that she cares nothing about that.

You study pictures of the eleven-year-old boy, Peter, declared King of Yugoslavia. Later, if he lives, and Yugoslavia lasts, as a country, he will be the actual ruler.

The boy, at the time of his father's cruel murder, was in an English school, learning the rudiments of football, Latin, cricket, Greek, tennis and other accomplishments, "becoming a gentleman's son."

Studying that young face, upon which time has written little, you are reminded that throughout history the world has been ruled by individuals, the character and ability of those individuals depending upon the accident of birth.

That accident might give to a nation the blessing of a Marcus Aurelius, the curse of an Ivan the Terrible, one of the French Rois Faineants "do nothing kings," or the intense cold, cruel efficiency of a Louis the Eleventh, most useful of French kings and the most thoroughly hated.

An exception in this rulership depending on the accident of birth has been the long succession of Popes.

No accident of birth selected them, but the careful choice of a college of cardinals, made up of the most keenly intelligent men in Europe. That helps to explain the fact that the line of the Popes has outlasted in power, by a thousand years, any other in Europe's history.

This will interest Californians who know that the prosperity of the citizens depends upon the prosperity of the state.

The Miami Herald, observing editorially that "the State of California is threatening to imperil motion picture investments by the tax doctrines of a Democratic-Socialist governor, and the stars of the screen may have to find a new home," announces that FLORIDA proposes to be that new home, and the Herald, not exactly sad about it, foresees the State of Florida "enriched by the addition of $75,000,000 to $150,000,000 of property and salaries and wages to workers."

California and Mr. Upton Sinclair will be interested to know that Florida on November 6 will vote on a constitutional amendment to exempt from all taxes for fifteen years to come any motion picture enterprises that may establish themselves in the State of Florida.

The Miami Herald says, editorially, "It behooves the people to vote 'yes' on the constitutional amendment" (that would give motion picture enterprises fifteen years of tax exemption.)

The Pensacola News Journal Co. wires concerning the Florida constitutional tax exemption, on "land, buildings, chattels, raw materials, as well as finished products of moving picture industry," that "this amendment will pass by a large majority."

This is important news for California. It requires little intelligence to realize that any program threatening, by excessive taxation, to drive out seventy-five to one hundred million dollars in annual wages and purchasing power is not the best possible thing for the average worker's prosperity.

In the latest, most shocking kidnaping crime, the victim's maid, Mrs. Woolet, who opened the door for the kidnaper, was found bound to a chair and gagged. Her report of loud shouting, plus the brutality, stupid and horribly cruel treatment by the kidnaper, beating his victim with an iron pipe, leads to the theory that the criminal may have been insane.

You realize how methods of "justice" have changed, remembering that not long ago, just before the French Revolution, the maid in this case, a perfectly innocent woman, might have been submitted to hideous tor-

STOLL PLEADS FOR FREEDOM OF WIFE

B. C. Threat to Score on Long Pass Fails

Bobby Curran, Boston College star, dropped the ball. That's the story. His chance to become a hero came in the first quarter, when Flaherty tossed the pigskin 25 yards for a forward pass, which was grounded when Curran butter-fingered the oval. The game between the Eagles and Fordham drew a capacity crowd of 25,000 at the Heights. The Rams butted their way to a 6-0 victory. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

PLOT ON LIFE OF BOY KING BARED

By Associated Press

Chambery, France, Oct. 12—A third suspected member of the group of terrorist plotters believed responsible for the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia was arrested today at Bourg Saint Maurice as he was about to cross into Italy by an Alpine pass. He said he was Quiqueran Debauzen, 40, born in Zagres, Yugoslavia, but now a resident of Austria.

Fordham Beats B. C. by 6 to 0 Score

By Walter Kiley

University Field, Newton, Oct. 12—The Fordham Rams today defeated the Eagles of Boston College, 6 to 0 in one of the most thrilling, sensational football games seen in New England in recent years.

A 63-yard run by Joe Maniaci of Fordham less than five mulntes after the opening whistle produced the only score of the game.

But in defeat the Eagles covered themselves in a blaze of glory, outplaying the Rams throughout the second half and staging one spectacular 71-yard parade which was stopped just one yard short of the tying touchdown.

Four times, one in the first period, when the Eagles carried to the enemy's 5-yard line, and three times in the final period, the Eagles

PEACHES' DADDY BROWNING DEAD

Scarsdale, N. Y., Oct. 12—Edward West Browning, New York real estate operator, husband of the former "Peaches" Heenan, died in a converted private hospital here at 10:30 this morning. He would have been 63 years old on Sunday.

After a cerebral hemorrhage last June, Browning was confined to the Hospital for Joint Diseases in New York City.

For several weeks his condition was critical. He was discharged from the hospital the middle of Sep-

BARRY HELD IN AUTO DEATH

Thomas J. Barry, 22-year-old son of former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry, was arrested as the driver of the car.

The accident happened as the two men and Mary Barry, sister of the driver, Harry Nickerson, of Burr st., Jamaica Plain, and an unidentified girl were on their way to the Boston College-Fordham football game in Nickerson's car.

NOTE TELLS KIDNAPER RANSOM IS READY

By Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12—Berry V. Stoll returned this afternoon from his dash through several counties of Central-Southern Kentucky, but did not explain what had led him there, or its results.

By International News Service

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12—Ransom demand of $50,000 has been met and "we are awaiting fulfillment of promises," Berry V. Stoll, wealthy oil man, announced through his attorney early this afternoon, while he himself was 60 miles away in mad pursuit of an automobile he believed carried his kidnaped wife and her abductor.

The statement, prepared after a night long vigil failed to bring word from the kidnaper, was handed to the press but was intended for the abductor himself to read, Stoll's attorney, John E. Tarrant, admitted.

The statement said:

"We have carefully fulfilled instructions, met all ransom requirements and are awaiting fulfillment of promises.

"The parties may act freely without fear of hindrance."

But fitting action to words, the socially prominent oil man did not wait to make the announcement himself. Instead, acting on a secret tip, he seized the wheel of his roadster and with a federal agent at his side, dashed from his home, outdistanced newspapermen and two hours later was reported speeding through Hodgenville, Ky., 60 miles south of here.

Stoll's statement was believed to mean the $50,000 ransom is ready.

U. S. PROBE OF KANSAS CITY MASSACRE BARES BIG SCANDAL

TRACE POLITICAL-GANGSTER COMBINE IN KILLING

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 12—The Washington Evening Star said today that federal agents investigating the Kansas City Union Station massacre had uncovered evidence of a political and gangster combine so startling in its implications that a federal grand jury investigation would be instituted almost immediately.

Rex Collier said in the Star story that two men who had figured prominently in the government's evidence already had been slain by gangsters and the grand jury inquiry was being hastened for fear that other prominent figures in the massacre of June 17, 1933, might be killed.

The story added:

"The two who were slain by gangster enemies while federal officers were investigating them were John Lazia, 'boss' of Kansas City's North Side; and Verne Miller, former Dakota sheriff and outlaw, identified as one of the 'trigger men' in the station slayings.

WITNESSES GUARDED

"James La Capra, gangster rival of Lazia; Richard T. Galatas, ex-politician and swindler; Mrs. Elizabeth Galatas, wife of the latter, and a number of other witnesses are being closely guarded by government officers.

"La Capra and Galatas have requested that they be kept in jail for 'self protection.'

"William Stanley, assistant to Attorney General Cummings, in announcing the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Galatas at New Orleans on Sept. 22, declared this week that the Kansas City slayings have been 'solved.'

DATA WITHHELD

"Some of the information gleaned by agents of the division of investigation of the department was disclosed at that time, but a mass of sensational data is being withheld until the grand jury meets in Kansas City Oct. 21.

"Ramifications of the conspiracy which resulted in the machine-gun murder of Federal Agent Raymond Caffrey, three police officers, and their prisoner, Frank Nash, are said to extend high into former official and political circles of the Missouri city.

"Indictments of one or more persons active in the Kansas City political organization may be sought by the government, it is said."

Newton Man Dies in Malden Crash

John L. McMahon, 22, of 306 River street, West Newton, died in Malden Hospital today from injuries sustained when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a pole at Medford street and Highland avenue, Malden.

The driver, Howard E. Thurston, 30, of Church street, Needham, is in the same hospital, his name on the danger list. The accident occured last night.

Dr. McGillicuddy to Hold Party Job

Dr. Helen I. Doherty-McGillicuddy, acting chairman of the Democratic State Commitee, may continue to function in that capacity for the balance of the election campaign.

While the state committee will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Parker House for the express purpose of electing a permanent chairman and a national committeeman, it is more than probable that no action will be taken on either position.

BODY OF SLAIN BOY IS FOUND IN TRUNK

By Associated Press

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 12—A blue-overalled, seven-year-old grammar school boy, John Feeney, Jr., was found strangled today and crammed into an old trunk in a small, ramshackle squatter's shack near the abandoned bed of the Morris Canal.

The rope with which the little boy had been strangled had apparently been picked up in the dumps surrounding the shack. It was lighter than ordinary sash cord, and had been twisted tightly about the boy's neck several times. A physician placed the time of death at approximately 9 p. m. last night.

The boy left his home in Bayonne, which is just across the canal bed that forms the Jersey City-Bayonne city line, after he returned from school yesterday afternoon. He was not seen afterwards.

Homicide squad detectives, who took over the investigation immediately started a hunt for two men who were known to frequent the dumps in the vicinity of the tiny shack. The men were wanted for questioning, it was said by police who descriged them as a read-headed man and an Italian youth.

Detectives also went into Bayonne to round up all the children in the vicinity of the modest Feeney home on the chance that some of them might have seen John before he disappeared.

Detectives said they would investigate the possibility that young John might have been playing "gangster" with some other children when he met his death. They pointed out playmates may have tied the rope around his neck and then, becoming frightened when he started to strangle, hid the body in the old trunk. The police department threw into the investigation 100 detectives.

British Recovery Achieved Without Hurting Business

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

London, Oct. 12—The story of what Great Britain did to bring about recovery was told to Universal Service today.

The narrator was Leslie Hore-Belisha, minister of transport and one of the chief architects of the present national government. Mr. Hore-Belisha was also former financial secretary to the British treasury. He said:

"The astonishing story is that there is no story to tell. We never attempt to anticipate events. We never draw diagrams of ideal worlds, planning for every contingency, many of which never arise. We trail on the rear of events and make the necessary adjustments, maintaining a calm realism.

"There has been no stifling of private initiative, no curtailment of private profit or property. There has been no legislative attempt to interfere with business by attempting to impose shorter hours or wage codes.

Sacrifices Readily Accepted

"The English people have an extraordinary political instinct and a long political experience. That is why compromise is very often considered by foreigners to be their chief characteristic. Logical minds are always revolted by the British tendency to compromise and identify it, quite wrongly, with hypocrisy.

"England faced a grave crisis three years ago. The great unity of the nation which was spontaneously realized in the face of difficulty showed the British instinct for compromise at its best. Rough and ready calculation was made of sacrifices that each section of the community should bear and was accepted as being a reasonable business arrangement between the different sections.

"The supertax and the income tax were raised and cuts were made in salaries. When improvement was realized, cuts were partially restored and income taxes reduced. No one suggested any curtailment of our liberties and nobody had to preach raucously any message about national solidarity.

System Placed Outside Politics

"Very few steps were consciously taken towards redemption of our fortunes, and those steps which were taken were simple and easily understood.

"First, we slid off the gold standard in circumstances so inevitable as to make it impossible for anyone to make the charge of breach of faith. In fact we were borrowing money up to the last moment to keep from going off.

"Second, we adopted a protective system and put it right outside of politics. Tariffs were to be determined and are still determined by a committee free of political pressure and consideration.

"Third, from the moment we decided to curtail imports through this tariff commission we were compelled to make certain readjustments in our domestic economy and provide more food for ourselves.

"The agricultural industry had been neglected for over 100 years and as it wasn't a paying proposition, being agriculturist, there was no business organization in the industry.

Glamour for Dictator Missing

"Methods were devised of making the growers of each agricultural commodity a little democracy. The majority determined the quality and quantity and the marketing conditions. They were rewarded for their co-operation with a quota imposed on competitive commodities coming from abroad.

"From the first to last there was no ballyhoo and no shouting, and the evolution and transformation in our economic structure proceeded silently, speedily and almost without friction.

"Under cover of the tariff on the one hand and the quota on the other hand, a remarkable transformation from individualism to co-operation is in progress.

"This transformation is being worked out in such a way as to be almost unnoticed. Throughout this period the most amazing thing is that we have produced no statesman who has endeavored to surround himself with the glamour of a dictator. There was no dictation. There was no appeal; no personal and intimate touch has been exercised to bring about the transformation.

All Steps Dictated by Events

"In this transformation the financial section of the city of London has been left absolutely untouched. Industrialists have not been dragooned, but by pressure of events themselves have come together in a remarkable way.

"There has been no attack on private initiative. The result has been amazing. It must be remembered that although we lost a considerable portion of our export trade as a result of the world crisis, we have gained first place among exporting nations. Our home market improved. The iron and steel industry is reaching record figures for output. In brief, Britain adjusted herself to events. Therefore everything that has happened has been expected.

"There have been no surprises, no shocks. Everyone knew in advance that we had to have a tariff. No one was taken aback when Neville Chamberlain introduced it.

"In short, we didn't experiment with blue prints of a future world. The steps we took were dictated by events, common sense and belief in private initiative and the political capacity of the people. Our progress has justified these steps."

VANDERBILT 'BIG GUNS' ARRIVE TO JOIN FIGHT OVER GLORIA

LADY FURNESS 'AMAZED' AT ACTIONS OF HER MOTHER

New York, Oct. 12—The Vanderbilts were rushing up their reserves today as the Columbus Day holiday brought a week-end truce to the Supreme Court front line battle over the Vanderbilt child-heiress.

An arriving "troop train" from Montreal brought three big guns of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's defense—her twin sister, Lady Furness; her brother, Harry Hays Morgan; and the Hon. Theobald Mathew, personal attorney for the Marchioness of Milford-Haven.

Lady Furness, a svelte, Continental figure, lost no time in blazing into action.

Her eyes glittering dangerously, she burst into impassioned French-accented speech.

"DELICATE MISSION"

"If anyone tried to take MY baby away from me, they would soon see what would happen! I'm a mother too, you know."

"Beware of what is said.

"I have come from Europe on a delicate mission. My sister, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, is battling Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for possession of her own baby, whose custody, for some strange reason, is contested by Mrs. Whitney.

"Mrs. Whitney is my sister's sister-in-law.

"My own mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, has seen fit to ally herself with Mrs. Whitney against her own kith and kin.

"I am amazed. No, I am not bitter—I'm positively amazed. It all seems so fantastic. The Morgans always were clannish. My mother taught us as children this 'above all, to thine own self be true'—and now she has turned her back on Gloria.

AT SISTER'S SIDE

"We will not fight this case in newspapers. My sister's day in court will come soon, and I, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw (her other sister) and Harry Hays Morgan, my brother, will be at my sister's side in this ordeal.

"My one contention is—I pray my own sister always will be more faithful to her own child than my mother has.

She smiled wanly and said:

"I will tell the whole truth—I think Mama is over-awed. I will cling to Gloria. The child—Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt, the question of whose custody has brought about this entire unfortunate affair—is the daughter of my sister. I'm thinking of the baby. You see, I am a mother, too,

STORIES LUDICROUS

"The stories of the Marchioness of Milford-Haven and my sister are absurd. They are more ludicrous than lewd.

'Prince Hohenlohe, whose name has been connected with this silly affair, is able to defend himself. He and his wife are en route to New York to take up the cudgels."

The French accent thinned out perceptibly in the Viscountess' speech as she went along. Her brother, meanwhile, impeccably turned out by the best tailors of London's Saville Row, was declaring in a soft but determined British accent that he was ready to give battle likewise on behalf of his sister's twin.

"I've talked on the trans-Atlantic wireless to Gloria," he said, "but you know how the things are. You can't always be sure what they are talking about at the other end. But I am ready to testify, of course, when I find out what it is about."

The Hon. Theobald Mathew, the Milford-Havens' solicitor, actually had nothing to say and maintained a fine British reticence about the affairs of the client.

He came, it was learned, after a conference with the Marchioness and her husband, with the protection of her interests his principal mission.

That inevitably will mean added protection for Mrs. Vanderbilt, since the two women's names were linked in early testimony of servants in a manner that startled international society.

PARRY QUESTIONS

The three of them, parried each question skillfully. Questioned concerning charges against Mrs. Vanderbilt, her ladyship arched her eyebrows and said:

"I understand there have been charges that my sister drank before breakfast—tommy-rot!

"And again I understand the Prince Hohenlohe has been mentioned in this hearing. He is capable perfectly of answering for himself. The ridiculous charges that my sister maintained a Parisian residence in which rats and other vermin gamboled is positively funny. My mother and dear father lived in that apartment. It was good enough for their children."

SHOULD BE PUBLIC

Lady Furness was politely indignant over the closed session of the habeas corpus proceedings now in session in New York's Supreme Court. Her contention was:

"Half of the case was public. It all should be. We have nothing to fear from public opinion. We welcome it. However, the judge obviously had a wise intention when he closed the proceeding and of course we respect his judgment.

"Mama Is Over-Awed," Says Lady Furness as Sisters Rally to Mrs. Vanderbilt

MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT LADY FURNESS

Arriving in this country to aid her sister, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, in her fight to regain custody of her 11-year-old daughter, Gloria, Lady Furness bitterly assailed their mother. "I pray my sister always will be more faithful to her own child than my mother was," said the former Thelma Morgan as she arrived in New York. (Pictures from International News.)

MRS. THAW O. K. GARDNER MRS. VANDERBILT

As one sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt speeds to her defense from England, another sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, continues to be Mrs. Vanderbilt's daily companion and champion at New York Supreme Court hearings over custody of 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, the "gold girl," heiress to $2,800,000. Here, just leaving the courtroom, are Mrs. Thaw, O. K. Gardner, a family friend, and Mrs. Vanderbilt. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Somerville Board O. K.'s Site Offer

The Somerville board of aldermen, winding up a long session early this morning, unanimously authorized consent to Mayor James E. Hagan to accept an offer of $20,750 from the Treasury Department for land at Donner avenue and Washington street, the site of a new postoffice. The site is in Union square and was formerly occupied by a branch library.

Vanderbilt Guests Always Respectable, Says Butler

By Universal Service

New York, Oct. 12—Prince Gottfried Hohenlohe is expected to appear in Supreme Court Monday to refute testimony linking his name with that of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, in the current sensational suit over custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt's ten-year-old daughter, Gloria.

The press and public again were barred from the hearing, and Justice John F. Carew gave his customary brief summation of the testimony to reporters after court.

Charles Zang, butler for Mrs. Vanderbilt, testified that on one occasion he had served the society beauty liquor before breakfast. He also said she gave many parties, but added:

"All the guests were perfect ladies and gentlemen."

Movies Labelled Education Aid

Motion pictures will play a great part in future education, according to Abraham Krasker, visual education expert at Boston University. He pointed out:

"The film is a powerful medium for education. It is more concentrated than the printed page. Children copy the conduct, the mannerisms, and the conversation of the film. Children retain a tremendous amount of information gained from movies."

ASSASSIN IS INTERRED AT COST OF $45

Marseille, Oct. 12—At a total cost of $45, France today lowered to a grave in Potter's Field the body of the man who, by the pressure of his trigger-finger, plunged two nations into mourning and terrified Europe.

Without mourners or flowers, Kalemen was lowered into a common grave in the presence only of the two assistants, a grave-digger, and a Roman Catholic priest. The priest does not even know the assassin's religion.

Boy King Near Belgrade; Queen Marie Seriously Ill

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

Innsbruck, Austria, Oct. 12—Its cargo sorrow, pain, and Yugoslavia's hopes for the future, a special train passed through here today.

It bore Peter II, child-king of Yugoslavia, his mother, the widowed Queen Marie, and her mother, the Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania.

The train was heavily guarded; the blinds on its windows were drawn; every precaution had been taken against a repetition of the tragedy at Marseille, which ended the life of Little Peter's father the late King Alexander.

The only newspaperman permitted to board the train here was the Associated Press correspondent. To him, Marie of Rumaria divulged that her daughter had spent the night in torment with infected teeth.

This pain, she said, was aggravated by the bereaved Queen's acute gall bladder trouble. It was evident that the Yugoslav Queen's condition was serious, because she was kept to her bed.

Marie of Rumania was careworn but courageous.

The train was due at Flagenfurt at 6 p. m. and was scheduled to proceed from there by way of Zagreb to Belgrade, where it will arrive tomorrow morning.

LABOR LEADERS FEAR STRIKES

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 12 — Several leaders of organized labor indicated today that they expect a fresh wave of strikes within the next six months unless President Roosevelt is successful in arranging the industrial truce he proposes.

This attitude became known as reports were heard that the President is not over-gratified at the results thus far of his suggestion that employers and labor attempt "a specific trial period of industrial peace."

It is said the President would like to see men outside governmental circles exert more spontaneous leadership toward such an armistice.

PLOT TO KILL BOY KING BARED

The commissary of police, after two days' gurelling examination of Novack and another suspect, Ivan Rajtich, announced the former had finally revealed his identity as Zvanemer Pospechil, born in 1904 in Yugo-Slavia.

Meanwhile in Paris police said tonight they believed King Alexander was assassinated by order of a European terroristic organization, whose goal is the elimination of governmental leaders.

The Surete Nationale declared officially that there was no suspicion, however, that any foreign government was implicated in the plot against Alexander.

A report published in the United States that a foreign government may be involved is "completely false," said officials, who added:

"We still are seeking to determine the real identity of Kalemen, Rajtich and Novak and the 'others mentioned in the investigation, their political affiliations, and who were their accomplices, for they certainly had accomplices."

OTHER PLANS

After a night-and-day-long modified "third degree" in Annemasse, police said they had received the impression that if Alexander had not been slain in Marseille, attempts would have been made to wreck his train between Marseille and Lyon or at Fontainbleau—the spot which appears to have been the forest lair of terrorists.

In this connection, a compass was found on Kalemen after he was slain in Marseille, another was found on one of the suspects, and a third was taken from the man who fled from police into Fontainbleau.

Further, the police said, they believe that in the event of failure of this triple attempt at killing the Yugoslav monarch, bombs would have been used in Paris to end his life.

The police said they suspected a active in Yukoslavia, was making its headquarters in Yanka Putza, Hungary, from which it was sending out men to commit bomb outrages against individuals and trains in Yugoslavia.

These men, said the police, were probably directed by a general staff.

NO FOREIGN COUNTRY

Neither Novak nor Rajtich admitted to the police that they had intended to kill Alexander. They said merely, in their sullen replies, that they had been ordered to go to Paris, there to be given instructions as to what they should do.

They revealed that they came to France from Yugoslavia by way of Munich and Switzerland, but the officials who extracted this information from them said that they did not have the slightest suspicion that any foreign country was involved in their activities.

Slav Student Rioters Dispersed by Police

By Associated Press

London, Oct. 12—A Daily Mail dispatch from Zagreb, Yugoslavia, said police had dispersed a group of students who attempted to make a hostile demonstration before the Italian Consulate at Zagreb.

Travelers reaching Zagreb from Serajevo said a bomb explosion at the Serajevo post office Wednesday had killed two persons.

Other disorders took place at Serajevo yesterday, the Mail stated. A report that a mob had destroyed a Roman Catholic seminary at Serajevo yesterday was not confirmed.

A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph said there were other destructive disorders elsewhere in Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia to Demand End of Italy Camps

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.)

Zagreb, Oct. 12—As a direct result of the assassination of King Alexander, Yugoslavia will demand immediate dissolution of Yugoslavian immigration camps in Italy and Hungary, it was learned from semi-official sources today.

The camps were established to house political exiles and malcontents from Yugoslavia.

Anti-Italian Wave Sweeps Yugoslavia

By International News Service

Belgrade, Oct. 12—A menacing wave of anti-Italianism swept Yugoslavia today, as 11-year-old King Peter II journeyed toward his capital of a nation that has suddenly become the new "powder keg" of Europe.

The government took desperate measures to hold down the lid and prevent the spark that might precipitate a catastrophe.

Terrific tension cloaked the mourning atmosphere of Belgrade, with military circles admittedly nervous and the public defiantly muttering accusations against Italy.

Charges that Italian sentiment, if not actual machinations, were responsible for the assassination of King Alexander at Marseille were heard on all sides, while the public was grvely alarmed by persistent rumors Italy is concentrating troops on the Yugoslavian border.

The government strictly prohibited Yugoslavian newspapers from publishing any anti-Italian articles, but demonstrations against Rome continued at Zagreb, Ljubljana, Sarajevo, Ossijek and elsewhere.

Heavy guards were thrown about the Italian consulate in Zagreb and in other Yugoslavian cities. Newspapers were rigorously censored, and all anti-Italian articles were strictly prohibited.

Italy Struggles to Avoid War Moves

By International News Service

Rome, Oct. 12—Italy was bending over backward today in a determined effort to avoid a clash with Yugoslavia, which might well provoke a new European conflagration.

Provocation would have to be enormous before Premier Mussolini, now the involuntary custodian of European peace, would even admit it existed, his subordinates hinted.

Rome practically closed its eyes to yesterday's anti-Italian activities in Croatia. Officials minimized the incidents, and they were not reported in the Italian press, under orders from the government.

This expressed the attitude of Mussolini, who is intensely desirous of maintaining peace, and, if humanely possible, attain the late French Foreign Minister Barthou's dream of friendly relations for all countries encircling Germany.

Italian Army Corps Ready, London Hears

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

London, Oct. 12—The Italian government has ordered two army corps to be in a state of readiness, according to the highest Yugoslavian sources here.

This further grave turn in the European situation, taken with the news from Paris that King Alexander's assassin was born in Trieste, formerly Austrian but now Italian territory, is causing great Anxiety is felt not because of any belief Italians were involved in the plot, but because of certain repercussions from misrepresentation by agitators in Yugoslavia, where hatred and suspicion of Italy has already led to demonstrations and attacks on Italian officials.

Somerville Dog Chews Boy's Lips

Nine-year-old John H. Chetham, son of Henry C. Chetham of 98 School street, Somerville, chief radio operator in the Somerville police department, was bitten by a shepherd dog today while at play with his three brothers, Thomas 12, Richard 7 and Charles 5.

The dog, which, according to the police is owned by a neighbor in Oxford street, tore the boy's lip. He was taken to Somerville Hospital, where only two stitches were taken in the wound until doctors can ascertain there has been no infection.

West End Firm's 2 Safes Robbed

Safe breakers forced open two safes in the offices of the New England Reed Co., in Green street, West End, last night. Their reward was two dollars in change.

The firm is in the same building where the famous Kendricks Club, ruled by the late Martin Lomasney, is located.

Italy Paper Calls Slaying "Logical"

Rome, Oct. 12 (AP)—The newspaper Il Tevere today broke from the ranks of the Italian press, which had been cordially sympathetic toward King Alexander of Yugoslavia, following his death, by characterizing his assassination as the logical result of his violent repressive measures on the Croats.

MOST IDENTIFICATIONS OF HAUPTMANN OPEN TO QUESTION, SAYS TRAIN

How many people have "identified" Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the man who did so-and-so on such a night? What is the average person's capacity for recollecting the features of a man seen under vaguely recalled conditions two-and-a-half years ago? And—what effect will such identifications have upon the New Jersey jury that will be asked by the state to convict Hauptmann in his trial for murder of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Arthur C. Train, America's foremost writer on crimino - legal matters, herewith in the fourth of a series of six daily articles gives the first thorough and authoritative analysis of the most sensational crime in recent years.

She Names Hauptmann

Miss Cecilia Barr, cashier at a Greenwich Village movie theater, who said Bruno R. Hauptmann paid her for a movie ticket with a $5 gold ransom note.

By ARTHUR C. TRAIN

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

The crime of extortion for which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been indicted in New York is defined under our penal law as "the obtaining of property from another with his consent, induced by the wrongful use of fear" through "an oral or written threat to do an unlawful injury to some member of his family."

It is not necessary, in order to obtain his conviction of extortion, to prove that Hauptmann had anything whatever to do with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh child, so long as it be established to a jury's satisfaction beyond a reasonable doubt that he procured money from the child's father under a threat to withhold the baby wrongfully unless ransom was paid.

Any individual could have committed the crime provided he was able to make Colonel Lindbergh believe that it was in his power to do as threatened. The threats contained in the 14 ransom notes, and the actual possession of the money by Hauptmann, make a complete case against him.

LINKS WITH KIDNAPING

But there is in addition a vast amount of evidence in corroboration (some of which also tends to connect him directly with the kidnaping itself). Let me outline this evidence:

The ladder made from materials taken from a yard where he had worked, and the nails similar to those used in its construction said to have been found in his house;

His failure to do any work after the date of the payment of the ransom and his coincident affluence;

The address and telephone number of Dr. J. F. "Jafsie" Condon, the go-between, written by Hauptmann on the inside of a closet in his own child's bedroom;

The false denials and contradictions in his attempted explanation of his concealed possession of the ransom bills and of having so large a sum of money at all;

The paper like that upon which the ransom notes was written discovered in his home;

IDENTIFICATIONS

His alleged identification by Colonel Lindbergh (through the voice); by Millard Whited as having been in the neighborhood of the Hopewell house just before the kidnaping; by John Perrone, the taxi driver who delivered one of the ransom notes to "Jafsie"; by "Jafsie" himself; and by Miss Cecilia Barr of Loew's Sheridan Square Theatre, who says that she sold Hauptmann a 40c ticket on November 26, 1933 for which he paid with a $5 ransom gold certificate which he took from his watch pocket folded in a peculiar way (the rather unusual way Hauptmann apparently had of folding all the ransom notes) and "tossed" at her. This was prior to the date upon which he claims to have received the package "afterwards discovered" to contain money "from his friend Isidor Fisch," and hence of vital importance in discrediting his explanation of when and how the ransom bills came into his keeping.

But their identifications were all made after the arrest of the defendant. He was not taken into custody because of them, and all, save that of Miss Barr, were made more than two years and a half after the witnesses are alleged to have originally seen him.

JAFSIE DOUBTFUL

Perrone, evidently the most convincing of them all, saw him only once; Whited but twice; Miss Barr once; while "Jafsie," who was most frequently in contact with him, is prepared to make no more than a "partial identification," which is hardly an identification at all.

Now, "identifications" should be and always are carefully scrutinized by a jury even when recent and made under the most favorable circumstances. These, as reported, can hardly be called either. How many of us, even after no more than three months, retain more than a general impression of a person we have seen but once?

Yet there have been many remarkable cases of seemingly almost incredible identifications which have sent or helped to send men to the electric chair—one of them in my own experience.

But such arresting or peculiar circumstances are most unusual, and the witness had observed the defendant on previous occasions and knew his face, so that her identification was rather of a letter than a nindividual. In any event, it was sufficiently extraordinary. Such a witness turns up only once in a life time.

Now, the danger of an overwhelmingly strong case with an enormous mass of proof and a myriad of witnesses is that that which should be perfectly simple may become complex and confusing, and that instead of following the broad straight road of common sense, the jury may wander down some byroad or cart track of evidence that leads to nowhere but bewilderment.

It is a great mistake for a prosecutor to claim too much. He should never allege that he will prove something which he cannot, whether it be important or not.

Any unnecessary issue, however trivial, that offers an oportunity to counsel for the defense to claim overzealousness on the part of the district attorney, lack of sincerity, personal vindictiveness or political self-interest, or to befog the real point, is a danger to be avoided.

SHUN OVERPROOF

The prosecutor should disarm his adversary by claiming nothing that he cannot prove up to the hilt. He should shun the "furious bandersnatch" of overproof.

If the state falls down on one identification, that failure is apt to taint the jury's faith in the others.

Colder Weather Is Due Tomorrow

If you thought it was chilly on this nice holiday morning when you emerged—well, you'll be surprised tomorrow morning, if the weather man's weather squint today doesn't trip him up.

In Boston the mercury hit 44 degrees for a low today, which is only 12 degrees above the freezing. Tonight, however, it will be colder, and tomorrow it will be even colder yet—and there may be a fine opportunity to give those furs their first real airing of the season and rid them of the mothball aroma.

MALE HORMONE MANUFACTURED BY SCIENTIST

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 12—The first artificial production of the male sex hormone was announced by Professor L. Ruzicka of Zurich in "Nature," the British official science journal.

This substance, which appears to be the same body chemical that gives man his gruff voice and other secondary differences from woman, was made by synthesis. It came from mixing common chemicals in a laboratory test tube.

Natural male sex hormones had been isolated previously by Butenandt. They were extracts obtained from the glands of animals. This natural hormone when given to a hen would cause her to grow a rooster's comb, although she still laid eggs.

The test announced today as proving that the test tube product is the same thing as the natural gland extract was the growing of a fully developed comb on a capon.

Suspect Grimly Faces Court

BRUNO HOUPTMANN

PINOCHLE GAME IS HAUPTMANN DEFENSE

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 12—With only three days remaining until Monday when a hearing will be held on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea to escape extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his counsel, James A. Fawcett, was busy today marshalling every scrap of evidence favorable to the cause of the Bronx carpenter.

Fawcett has already announced that Hauptmann's defense will be an alibi and from one source today comes the report he will contend that on the night the Lindbergh infant was stolen from its crib in Hopewell, N. J., the somber-faced alien was in the Bronx—playing pinochle.

Fawcett has a large detail of private detectives working to bolster his defense and indications were that every so-called telling point in the prosecution's case against Hauptmann would be vigorously contested.

WITNESS ATTACKED

In New Jersey, for example, it is understood Fawcett will attempt to blast the props from under the state's star witness—the man on whose testimony it is believed the prosecution is depending to prove that Hauptmann was in Hopewell on or about the time of the kidnaping.

This witness, it is said, is Millard, Whited, Sourland mountain logger, who told police that on two occasions during the month before the crime he saw a man resembling Hauptmann in the woods near the Lindbergh estate.

An affidavit in which Whited's credibility as a witness is assailed is now in the hands of the defense attorney, it was reported.

The man who signed the affidavit it is stated, is Theodore Arnold, a Hopewell truckman, who declares he has known the mountaineer for more than 20 years.

Meanwhile a new figure entered the case in the person of Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, N. J., a theatrical booking agent with offices on Fifth avenue, New York. He may appear with other state witnesses in the Bronx on Monday at the habeas corpus hearing.

ROSSITER READY

Rossiter, it was learned, is prepared to testify that he talked with Hauptmann for approximately ten minutes in a well-lighted place near Sourland mountain. Rossiter revealed that he had not known Hauptmann by name, but had identified him positively from pictures.

Admission that Rossiter would be one of the most important witnesses for the prosecution came from Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, who is handling Jersey's struggle to extradite Hauptmann, declared himself unworried by Fawcett's effort to impugn Whited's credibility as a witness, and defied the defense to prove that the carpenter was not in New Jersey on and about the time of the kidnaping.

Not until Whited was found and hi sstory put in affidavit form did New Jersey dare to go ahead with indicting and extradition proceedings against Hauptmann, it was pointed out by one of Fawcett's detectives.

150,000 Receive Holy Communion

Buenos Aires, Oct. 12 (AP)—More than 150,000 men, participants in the 32d International Eucharistic Congress, received communion this morning in a great open air ceremony which started in the Plaza Mayo at midnight.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican Secretary of State and Papal Legate to the congress, with five other cardinals participated in the ceremony in the brilliantly illuminated square, traditional center of Argentine religious and governmental activities.

Holiday Arrival to Be Christopher

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Manning of Cowper street, East Boston, today claimed the honor of presenting the world with the first 1934 Columbus Day baby, a seven and a half pound son, born at the Broadway Hospital, Cambridge, at 12:30 a. m. The baby will be named Christopher Columbus Manning, the father said.

Anti-Steel Trap Vote Is Ordered

GEN. JOHNSON IN HOSPITAL FOR OPERATION

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 12—General Hugh S. Johnson, recently retired NRA administrator, is confined to Walter Reed Hospital awaiting a minor operation, it was revealed here. At the same time it was disclosed that he has rented a suite of offices here, preparatory to launching himself into an "engineering and industrial advisory business."

He is expected to open his offices immediately upon his discharge from the hospital.

Friends, close to Johnson said he is expected to be "back on the street" within a few days. One friend said he was not sure what business the general expected to carry on at his new office, but that he had heard hints of a business advisory service.

Johnson was quoted as stating, however, that he did not think he would be able to advise his clients on NRA code matters.

City, State Leaders Honor Memory of Columbus at Celebration

The flags of the 22 nations of America were massed around the Parkman bandstand today in a burst of color that rivaled the Common's autumn foliage as the city celebrated Columbus Day.

Although the celebration which was attended by Mayor Mansfield and the consular representatives of the various Pan-American countries—each of which celebrates this holiday, it was far from being Boston's only recognition of the day.

Knights of Columbus councils and American Legion posts, as well as other patriotic organizations, joined in celebrating the 442nd anniversary of America's discovery by the commander of the Santa Maria, the Nina and the Pinta.

NORTH END PROGRAM

One of the most brilliant of the day's festivals was that in the North End, where co-patriots of the Genoese navigator attended the memorial mass of the North End Post of the American Legion and witnessed the blessing of the post's new flags, the national colors, the union jack, the state flag and the Legion banner.

Celebrant of this mass in St. Leonard's Church, in Salem street, was the Rev. Eugene Catoni, O. F. M., assisted by the Revs. Vonaventure Cascio, O. F. M., deacon; Roger Imperialie, O. F. M., sub-deacon, and Valerian Pianigiana, master of ceremonies.

After the mass, the Legionnaires paraded through Hanover, Salem and Oxford streets to the park. The Auxiliary and other organizations joined in the parade, which was only a prelude to the drill competition and parade held later in the day and in which 40 Legion posts from various parts of the state were represented.

Meanwhile, a memorial mass was also chanted in St. Augus- South Boston, for the deceased members of Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, and Court Marquette, Catholic Daughters of America.

The celebrant of this requiem was the Rev. Augustine M. McMahon. He was assisted by the Rev. Thomas F. Devlin, as deacon; the Rev. William J. Kenney, as sub-deacon, and the Rev. Francis J. Kenney, as master of ceremonies.

FR. BURKE HONORED

After the mass and in the presence of the 1500 persons that crowded the church, Martin F. Connolly, grand knight of Pere Marquette Council, stepped to the altar rail and presented to the church a gold ciborium as a memoria to the late Father Richard A. Burke, for 12 years a curate at St. Augustine's and for eight years chaplain of the council.

The gift was accepted by the Rev. Father Kenney, who made a brief acknowledgment, saying that it was hard to conceive of a more fitting memorial to a priest.

With flags flying all over the city and bands filling the downtown streets the city's official celebration on the Common got under way at 3 p. m.

As early as noon-time score of persons were on hand to secure vantage places from which to watch the exercises.

Representatives of 22 North and South American countries, each garbed in the costume of his native land, wdere to participate, since the affair is a Pan-American celebration.

Mayor Mansfield heads the list of diplomatic representatives and other distinguished guests in the program.

After Mayor Mansfield delivers an address of welcome, President Daniel Marsh, of Boston University acts as the orator of the day. Renzo A. Attoisi, an Argentine youth, who is studying at Boston English High school, will give the reading of Joaquin Miller's "Sail On."

Judge Frank Leveroni is chairman of the city's celebration. Assisting him are J. H. Noonan, president of the Citizens' Public Celebrations Association, Henry I. Lazarus, Henry J. D. Small, E. B. Mero, Joseph A. F. O'Neil, Fred E. Mann, John C. Broadhead, Wilfred F. Kelley, Mapor James F. Winston, John B. Archibald, John J. Keenan and John A. Scanga.

ture at the hands of "justice," on the theory that she had not told all she knew and that torture might make her tell more.

Often when nobles and other "high" personalities were accused of crime, their servants, accused of nothing, were tortured hideously to make them tell all they knew.

And just as the would-be "wise" tell you now that without capital punishment crime could not be discouraged, so, before the revolution, well meaning men, including high judges, said there could be no effective justice without torture, because, if you did not torture witnesses, you could not expect them to tell what they knew.

The forces of the United States and of Kentucky will get this kidnaper, sane, insane, drunkard, or a drug fiend, and make short work of him.

The law makes death the penalty for violent kidnaping, and intends that the penalty shall be applied. It will be applied in this case, quickly, without any help from the national government, if a mob should get hold of the kidnaper.

Moving picture and sound photographers, on hand when King Alexander landed at Marseille, expecting to take photographs of rejoicings and polite speeches, photographed instead the murder of the King and of the French foreign minister, wild rioting, the killing of the murderer by police with sabres and pistols.

Their sound apparatus recorded the cries of the enraged mob, a most amazingly important "moving, talking picture."

But of all this France may see and hear nothing. The French government decrees that these motion pictures shall not be shown in France, and forbids exporting the reels to America and other countries. Perhaps that is wise, perhaps not.

On the assumption that human beings are able to form their own opinions and should be allowed to do so, it might be better to let everybody in the world see exactly what happened, thus arousing horror of violence and crime, more intense hatred of the criminal.

A charming young moving picture lady, Miss Phyllis Cooper, after two months of "marriage bliss," announcing that she and her husband have parted, adds:

"Just call it incompatibility."

That would sound strangely to a wife of the primitive American kind, who helped her husband to build the log cabin, chop down trees around it, shoot an occasional bear, or Indian.

You could not imagine Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln, saying, "Just call it incompatibility." She was too busy.

Dike Wills $10,000 to Mission Board

New York, Oct. 12—The will of Samuel J. Dike, filed for probate here, bequeathed $10,000 to the American Board of Commissions of Foreign Missions, 14 Beacon street, Boston, Mass., and $5000 to the Salem Hospital, Salem, Mass.

The bequeaths were made as a memorial to the decedent's brother, the late Nataniel Duke, of Auburndale, Mass.

FIRST LADY CUTS CAKE

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 12—At fifty, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt believes birthdays cease to be an occasion for celebration, demands of one's grandchildren to the contrary notwithstanding.

On her fiftieth birthday yesterday, Mrs. Roosevelt acted accordingly, ignoring the requests by Sistie and Buzzie Dall for a party. The best the youngsters could obtain in the way of a compromise was a birthday cake and a little family chat at teatime.

Not a party in any sense, this latter occasion came when the President, returning from an auto rid, met Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt in his office, and went to living room, where they wished the First Lady many happy returns of the day and enjoyed a cup of tea.

CARNEY IN ERA CENSOR ROLE ASSAILED

ERA Administrator Joseph P. Carney has had his troubles since he took over the job of handling the federal relief program in Massachusetts, but today was the first time anyone called him "oversensitive" and "timid."

And the epithets were applied by no less a person than Professor Charles Henry Conrad Wright, who teaches French language and literature to Harvard students.

The occasion was Carney's action in banning a production of Molière's play "Tartuffe" by ERA actors. The ERA head thought it wasn't "fit." Said Professor Wright:

"The present action is an example of censorship which is both foolish and overdone. It is an excessive yielding to timidity on the part of oversensitive souls.

"Although 'Tartuffe' has had in the past a checkered career during periods of religious repression, anyone likely to be morally or spiritually injured by 'Tartuffe' would not be very useful to the cause of religion or unbelief."

3 Hurt in Crash of Whitney Plane

Llangollen Farm, Upperville, Va., Oct. 12 (AP)—Three prominent society leaders of the East today were nursing airplane accident bruises received when John Hay Whitney's plane cracked up in a landing on his farm here at the end of a trip from New York to Llangollen for the national steeplechase classic here this afternoon.

Those injured were Mrs. Eleanor Jones, John Hay Whitney and Milton Holden. The pilot, Edgar Woodham, also suffered minor injuries.

Daughter Sells Rings For Baker Food Fund

Her father allegedly stole about $259,000, but Natalie Baker, 18, Quincy High School student, found it necessary today to turn her wrist watch and her rings into family food fund.

The Wollaston home from which Roger E. Baker lived apart from his wife and children, while he allegedly mulcted a leather company treasury to finance his private restaurant and baseball interests, presented a sorry spectacle.

There was little food and no heat.

Conditions were so bad that Mayor Charles A. Ross said he would call at the home where Mrs. Bertha Baker lives with Natalie and Robert and make some arrangements to aid them, at least until Baker's fate is settled in the courts.

WON'T SEE HUSBAND

Baker's estranged wife spent a sleepless night. She definitely stated this morning she would not again attempt to see her husband in jail. He refused to see her the other day and she has since been told that his excuse was that he was suffering from a severe headache.

Mrs. Baker herself has a severe headache. So little fuel remained in the house today that she forbore lighting a fire in fear of colder weather tonight.

Natalie volunteered her watch and rings to sell for money with which to buy food and Mrs. Baker said there were other trinkets about the house that might be so used.

Neighbors took considerable food to the house this afternoon, enough to last several days.

SUMMONED ON BILL

To add to Mrs. Baker's worries she was served with a summons to appear in court Oct. 20 in connection with an unpaid laundry bill for $174 charged against the Rosebud chain of restaurants which her husband allegedly financed with stolen funds.

Baker had given her name as well as his own on the restaurant papers and her small, second-hand coupe has already been seized against judgment in the action.

An investigator seeking to untangle the maze of Baker's financial operations said there was a chance that restitution to the full amount of the theft from the Diamond Kid Company might eventually be made from the profits of the four Rosebud restaurants, now being operated by Judge Daniel A. Shea, as receiver.

GIVE UP "MRS. B." SEARCH

Police apparently are no longer attempting to locate Mary Murdock, former waitress and hostess, who was constantly in Baker's company and was known as "Mrs. B." They are convinced she was unaware of Baker's illegal activities.

Miss Bella Lewis, 19, who worked as a maid for "Mrs. B." said she and Baker never entertained during the four months she was in their employ in Weston, and that "Mrs. B." had no expensive clothes or jewelry.

8 N. E. FLIERS SET FOR RACE

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 12—Eight New England fliers are scheduled to arrive at Holmes Airport tomorrow in an air race from Boston to start off the Greater New York air meeting, which runs through to November 11.

Clarence Chamberlin, director, announced the judges today as Commodore F. G. Ericksen, Robert Lyons and Capt. Kent Porter.

The entrants in the Boston-New York race are Mrs. Teddy Kenyon, Miss Margaret Kimball, Dolly Berenson and Edith Descomb, all of Boston, and Joshua Crane, Jr., J. R. Putnam, Robert Love and John Schobe.

The fliers are scheduled to take off in Boston at 10 a. m. and arrive here about noon.

'Maryland' Quest Holds Policeman

Three children of a policeman in Dorchester would be very grateful if someone who may have found their white Spitz dog, "Maryland," would bring her back again. The children are those of Motorcycle Officer Herbert Stockman of South Boston station and they live at 57 Greenbrier street, Dorchester.

A week ago today, "Maryland," a lady Spitz about 15 months old, failed to return. Being a policeman, Stockman has been expected to find "Maryland."

So if anyone would return "Maryland," the children would be made happy and their faith in Dad as a policeman would be restored.

Insull Trial Airs Halsey-Stuart Aid

Chicago, Oct. 12 (INS)—Halsey, Stuart & Co. today was pictured at the trial of Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants for mail fraud as performing a labor of love in the formation of the now collapsed Corporation Securities Comapny.

Vanemen Lamont, former assistant secretary of Corporation Securities, testified that never, so far as he knew, did Charles B. Stuart, Clarence T. MacNeille or Frank K. Sharder, officers of Halsel, Stuart, take one penny of salary for their services in the formation of the Insull company.

Convict Hunted in Man's Beating

Summoned to the side of an automobile in Main street, Charlestown, early today, Bernard Cusack, 25, of Frothingham avenue, was beaten on the head with an iron bar. He suffered a fractured skull and is in a serious condition at the Haymarket relief station.

Police said they learned there were four or five men and one woman in the machine. One man was later picked up for questioning and police radio asked the apprehension of a man on parole from State prison. The cause of the attack was not determined.

New Board to Pass on NRA Disputes

Washington, Oct. 12 (INS)—NRA compliance and labor disputes under the Blue Eagle wings will in the future be handled by a newly set up industrial recovery board headed by Clay Williams, working in the close co-operation with the Department of Justice and the Federal trade commission.

This was announced today by Donald R. Richberg who heads the industrial emergency council which is the policy forming body of the big recovery unit.

This is the time of the year for real riding pleasure. You can pick up a real bargain by watching the Automobile-For-Sale columns of the American and Advertiser.

Brann Queries Solons on Rum

Augusta, Me., Oct. 12—In an effort to give the people of Maine the repeal conditions voted by them, Governor Louis J. Brann continued today to sound out members of the Legislature in regard to calling an immediate special session.

The Legislature, controlled by Republicans, last winter refused to enact liquor legislation requested by Governor Brann, a Democrat.

Pitkin Calls On Druggists To Analyze Humanity

New York, Oct. 12—Walter B. Pitkin, author of "Life Begins at Forty" advised druggists who have reached the age of 40 to "turn their stores into laboratories for research into human nature" at the ninth annual celebration of National Pharmacy week which is now in progress.

The average druggist, Pitkin said, is somewhat more energetic than his neighbors in other lines of trade. He said:

"It is no accident that the druggist experiences little or none of the fatigue which plagues industrial workers. Although his hours are longer, he is blessed with a variety of work which almost automatically eliminates the danger of serious fatigue."

Borden Milk Heir, 29, Dies

Winsted, Conn., Oct. 12—Gail Borden Munsill, great grandson of the founder of the first evaporated and condensed milk company in the United States, was dead today of influenza.

He was born in Hartford in 1904. And attended several private schools including Powder Point School, Duxbury, Mass. In addition he was a graduate of the University of Virginia in 1928.

NEW REGISTRATION RECORD PLEASES CURLEY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Voters in the November elections, when they unfold their ballots in the booths, will find that there are seven candidates for governor.

In addition to former Mayor James M. Curley, the Democratic nominee, Gaspar G. Bacon, the G. O. P. nominee, and Frank A. Goodwin, with the designation "Equal Tax," will be the names of John W. Aiken of Chelsea, Socialist Labor Party, Freeman W. Follett of Haverhill, Prohibition; Alfred Baker Lewis of Cambridge Socialist Party, and Edward Stevens of Boston, Communist Party.

The Socialists, Socialist Labor and Prohibitionists are also represented for the balance of the state ticket and for United States senator. The one exception is for the state auditorship where the Prohibitionists have no candidate, due to the withdrawal of Irma Rich of Boston, formerly an employe in that office.

FIVE OPPOSE WALSH

For the senatorship, Albert Sprague Coolidge of Pittsfield, is the candidate for the Socialists W Barnard Smith of Brookline, for the Prohibitionists; Albert L. Waterman of Boston, for the Socialist Labor and Paul C. Greenfield for the Communists. They are contesting against Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, and Robert M. Washburn, Republican.

That the total vote to be cast will break all records is indicated from reports of unusually heavy registration from practically every section of the state.

In Boston, where the all time registration record was broken yesterday, the registration campaign is in full stride is in full stride. The Boston registration now stands at 3[illegible]73.

Gratified by the enthusiasm being shown by Democratic workers Curley has high hopes of reaching the mark of 325,000 set by him following the primary. He says:

NEW DEAL DAY SEEN

"When we realize that this is not a presidential year, it must be apparent to everybody that the interest so far developed is due to the insistence on the part of the people of Boston that they intend to endorse the New Deal policies of President Roosevelt.

"It will not be a mere election day in Massachusetts. It will be a New Deal Day in every sense of the word."

There remains four full nights of outside registration and three full days of active work left before registration closes on October 17.

THAYER WEALTH AIDS CHARITY

Leaving direct bequests of about $215,000, Mrs. Pauline R. Thayer of Boston and Leominster, widow of Nathaniel Thayer, willed the residue of her estate to be divided between the Massachusetts General Hospital and the House of the Good Samaritan.

Although the value of the estate was not indicated when the will was filed in Worcester probate court, Mrs. Thayer was left an estate of $6,000,000 by her husband.

Included among the specific bequests in her will were bequests of $5000 each to the Lancaster Library, the Clinton Hospital, the First Church of Lancaster and the Lancaster Social Service Association.

Bequests of $10,000 each were made to the department of social service and the nurses' alumnae fund, both of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

$20,000 of Liquor Seized in Maine

Portland, Me., Oct. 12—Federal inspectors and police seized 1900 gallons of imported liquor and 200 gallons of alcohol, valued at $20,000, in a raid on a truck and a building here early today.

The seizure came about when Henry P. Weaver, chief of the federal inspectors in Maine, stopped a truck and arrested the operator.

MONEY READY; RETURN WIFE, STOLL PLEA TO KIDNAPER

MONEY NOT PAID

Later Tarrant amplified the statement, making it positive that the $50,000 ransom has not been paid. He said:

"The note given the newspapers was intended for the kidnaper and can be interpreted by no one else. Any attempt to interpret it as an announcement that the ransom has been paid will defeat its purpose."

W[illegible] S. K[illegible] [illegible] statement was [illegible]

"We have arranged to let the kidnaper drive right up to the door, collect the ransom, deliver the prisoner and drive off without molestation."

Federal agents have promised to permit the kidnaper to escape, Kammerer added.

"I wouldn't have let him go if I had known it," said Kammerer.

Hope for a quick release of Mrs. S[illegible] failed to [illegible] for the [illegible] matron.

Federal agents rushed to southern Kentucky following reports [illegible] parties had been [illegible] and 50 mil[illegible] [illegible] country [illegible] Every camp [illegible]

FEAR FOR HER SAFETY

Anxiety that Mrs. Stoll might [illegible] strength to endure the ordeal of kidnaping grew among her friends as the 33d hour of her [illegible] at 11 o'clock [illegible]

[illegible] with a cord and [illegible] was dragged from [illegible] Wednesday afternoon [illegible] her with two blows on her head, one of which cut a [illegible] in her [illegible] [illegible] and when a [illegible] We are [illegible] [illegible] clear the way [illegible] kidnaper [illegible] newspapermen emanated [illegible] from the Stoll estate.

How the intermediaries for the ransom negotiators were chosen [illegible] a mystery. The two-page typewritten ransom note was lengthy enough to embrace such detailed instructions but no one would confirm that it did.

William Marshall Bullitt, prominent attorney here, was reported to be the Stoll envoy but he insisted he had nothing to do with the case.

Sheriff's posses at Smith's Grove searched the [illegible] country near [illegible] for trace of the kidnaper after a farmer reported seeing Mrs. S[illegible] in a car late yesterday.

S[illegible] reiterated that he doesn't give a hang about prosecuting the kidnaper so long as his wife is returned safely.

For hours, the small family group headed by the kidnaped woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W[illegible] [illegible] across Speed [illegible] her husband [illegible] Stoll refining company ex[illegible] his brother George and George Reed, a sales manager for the refining company, waited some word from the fiendish abductor who forced the woman from her home.

GOVERNOR OFFERS AID

Governor Ruby Laffoon at Frankfort kept in touch with Director of Public Safety [illegible] Wakefield and offered [illegible] of the city [illegible] [illegible] He advised co-operation, however, with the Department of Justice agents who are here from Cincinnati, Indianapolis and other cities.

Three telephone lines have been set up on the Stoll estate in the fashionable Lime Kiln district on the southeast section of the city.

W. W. Kammerer [illegible] said:

"The family of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll is urgently requesting the police and others interested, and all parties concerned in the welfare of Mrs. Stoll to keep off the estate, and leave the family in complete isolation so that they may be free for a contact.

"We plead for a message from Mrs. Stoll."

Kammerer and Harold Nathan, assistant director of the investigation division of the Department of Justice refused to answer questions fired at them by reporters.

From other sources, however, it was learned that the family believes Mrs. Stoll to be alive and suffering no further hardship than the wound on her head inflicted by the kidnaper in her own home. She was slugged with an iron pipe.

A report from the Tennessee border [illegible] of Smith's Grove [illegible] 90 miles away, said that a woman resembling Mrs. S[illegible] accompanied by a man had passed through there heading into the [illegible] Authorities indicated that they had little hope of tracing the automobile, however.

Another clue which so far has not proved valuable, was a report that two men and a woman were seen in an automobile just outside the city by tourists, the woman resembling the kidnaped woman. A [illegible] reported that the m[illegible] locked their heads when he drove by the car.

A check of the license plate caused authorities to investigate, however, as the car was not the type required for the particular license series.

Nathan today said:

"We are more concerned just now in getting the woman back alive and unharmed than we are in making an arrest. Her safety comes first."

PNEUMONIA FEARED

Belief that the woman's physical condition, weakened from a recent cold, a fever and the present exposure, might cause an attack of pneumonia led the 30-year-old husband to make a personal plea for mercy. He said:

"The money's ready. Please send back my wife. That's all I ask."

He added:

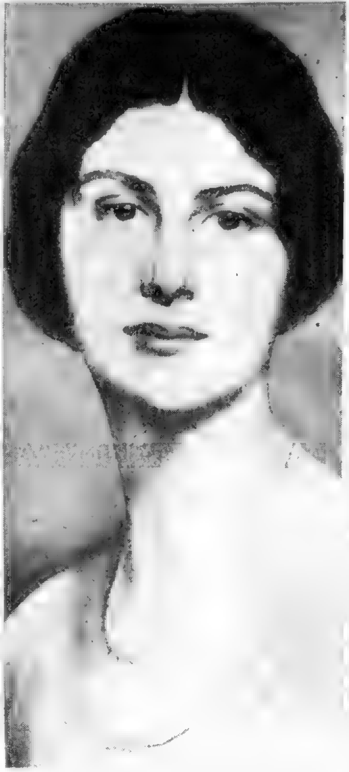
"All channels have been cleared for negotiations with the man. There will be no tricks. Our only hope is to make possible the safe return of Mrs. Stoll."

Mrs. Stoll, slugged with an iron pipe and her hands bound with adhesive tape, was taken from her home in an outlying suburb along the river road here a few minutes before her husband returned from the city.

Police and federal agents examined the maid, a Negro gardener and several neighbors in the hope of tracing the woman's assailant.

Federal agents said the detection of fingerprints upon an iron pipe, a dismantled telephone and some furniture would aid them in ultimately identifying the kidnaper, but meantime their principal concern was to impress upon the kidnaper the serious condition of the young matron's health.

Ransom Ready for Victim



Struck over the head with an iron pipe and kidnaped in her night clothes, Mrs. Alice Stoll, wife of Berry V. Stoll, wealthy Louisville, Kentucky, oil executive, is being held for $50,000 ransom. The money today was said to be in the hands of mediators. The above picture is a reproduction of a recent oil painting of the society matron. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Suspect Seized for Grilling on Kidnaping

By International News Service

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 12.—Local police today took a man to headquarters for questioning about the kidnaping of Mrs. Berry Stoll, Louisville, Ky., society woman. No charge has been placed against him.

He was picked up for questioning following the discovery of a car in a local wrecking establishment which Patrolman Tom Mitchell said contained several blonde hairs, and cloths which he said might conceivably be used as bandages.

Employes at the auto wreckers told Patrolman Mitchell that the man had brought in the car and sold it to them. They were dismantling the machine. But the work was halted by order of local police.

Police Chief John Britton told newspapermen that the man had told several conflicting stories as to his whereabouts after turning the car over to the wreckers.

Patrolman Mitchell said the car bore Kentucky license plates.

Raccoon Roped at Revere

In a very efficient manner, the Field and Stream squad of the Revere police department — with one ringer added—captured a lively and vivacious raccoon on this Columbus Day, this being the first raccoon to have discovered Revere in years—except with a college boy inside.

Attorney Bernard Berkowitch was considerably surprised when he came out on his veranda at 122 Campbell avenue and found it tenanted by the raccoon. He went toward the [illegible] animal which looked exactly like a small coat except for the buttons, but when it hissed at him he called police.

The Field and Stream squad, consisting of Patrolmen Larry Dugan and Franklin Nolan — with Freddie Gillis, Evening American correspondent, as a ringer, piled on their hunting clothes and went forth.

First the hunters attempted to capture the animal with their bare hands, but this proving fruitless they stripped down Mrs. Berkowitch's c[illegible] while she frowned from a window. A few ex[illegible] tossed by Dugan and the raccoon was [illegible]

5 HURT IN CRASH IN BACK BAY

Five persons were slightly injured in a terrific collision of two automobiles at Berkeley and Marlborough streets in the Back Bay today.

One car containing a man, woman and three children was overturned and demolished. The driver of the other machine, which carried Maryland registration, was alone.

All the injured were taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

There they were identified as Frank Curry, 43, of Ripley road, Belmont, his wife Anne, 41, his children Irene, six, and Frank Jr., three, and his nephew Frank Haviland, 16, of Drew road, Belmont.

The occupant of the other car was Everett E. Watson of Baltimore.

HOLDEN CAMP FIRE FATAL

Worcester, Oct. 12.—John J. Goulding, 27, of 11 Crown street, was burned to death today at a camp in Holden where he and Thomas F. Halloran, 20, Holy Cross senior, had gone to spend the holiday. [illegible] from a fireplace ignited the camp after its owner, George Phipps, departed for work, leaving the others asleep.

Halloran escaped unhurt. Goulding's body was found near a door. He was a utility company employe and in 1931 was defeated in a contest for alderman.

Mayors to Hear Polish Opera Here

Mayor Mansfeld, Mayor George J. Bates of Salem and City Councillor [illegible] are among [illegible] who will occupy boxes tonight at the Polish American Opera Company production of [illegible] Moniuszko opera "Halka" at the Boston Opera House.

Maria Karwowska, prima donna, and Janusz Popławski, leading [illegible] of the Warsaw Opera House, are the [illegible] in the four-act tragic drama which stands out as one of Stanislaw Moniuszko's best works and his first in a purely national strain. Tonight's "Halka" is produced in co-operation with the singing societies "Lira" of Boston and "Chopin" of Salem.

Telephone Lines in Ireland Cut

Belfast, Oct. 12 (AP)—All the telephone lines between the Irish Free State and the Northern Ireland capital went out of service early today.

COMNINOS SAYS HE QUIT GIRL TO STUDY

Dr Cyrus Dimitri Comninos had to choose between his sweetheart or his medical studies in 1927, so he gave up the sweetheart and his decision was all right with her Attorney John M Russell, counsel for the doctor told a Suffolk County jury

And so Dr Comninos' defense against the $100,000 heart balm suit brought by Miss Edna May Renke of Jamaica, L. I, will be based along these lines when the case resumes Monday, Attorney Russell asserted.

FELL IN LOVE

The 34-year old Boston and Groton physician took the witness stand himself during the closing hours of yesterday's session.

He told of his early struggles after coming to this country, how he had worked as a baker's assistant, a bus boy, a watchman and as an African dodger at Coney Island. He had even slept on Central Park benches in New York, he said

He was working at the Long Island Golf Club when he met Edna May Renke through her brother, he testified. He told the court

"We fell in love with each other."

"At the end of July, 1926, did you talk of marriage?"

"Yes, we decided that after I got through my studies we were to get married."

"Was any date fixed for the marriage?"

"No"

"Were you in a position to get married then, or in the immediate future?"

"No. My circumstances were extremely poor. I had just a suit of clothes and a few shirts and other things."

"Now did you give her this object?"

Attorney Russell held up a medal that the doctor had received at Wilbraham Academy. Dr Comninos answered

"Yes. I gave it to her and said that when we got married we will show this to our children to show them my excellence in American history"

KISSED HER FEET

The attorney then asked his client if he had kissed Miss Renke's feet as she had previously told the court. He said he had, telling her "jokingly, that it was an old Greek custom"

"And it was done jokingly?"

"Yes."

Earlier testimony had been concerned with cross-examination of Miss Renke, during which the plaintiff told the court that she wasn't seeking "vengeance' against the woman that Dr Comninos did marry.

The woman that the doctor did marry was Mrs. Dorothy W. Parkhurst, widow of a former governor of Maine.

GRIDIRON CALLS TO SCIENTIFIC CHILD

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service

New York, Oct. 12 Scientific training has made a big difference in the lives of 2½ year-old Johnny and Jimmy Woods, the famous twins selected for observation by the Child Development Institute.

Johnny, who has had the benefit of higher education and training at the hands of the nation's leading scientists is going to be a football player. Jimmy, the twin who was allowed to develop governed only by nature, thinks he will be a plumber.

And science after measuring the reactions of the twins and testing their reflexes, has decided with a sigh that, despite the extra attention given to Johnny, he is not superior to his brother

Johnny even now is training for his football career. He does it in the kitchen and aids his program by raiding the jam jar whenever his mother isn't looking

Jimmy amuses himself by banging on the pots and pans with a hammer and because of his early-discovered trait of losing his tools has been decreed the ideal plumber type. His principal passion is applesauce

The parents of the twins Mr and Mrs. Dennis Woods, disagree with the scientists who say that education hasn't improved Johnny fundamentally. Says the father

"Why all you have to do is look at the boys to see that the scientists are wrong. Johnny is obviously superior. He's far better looking than Jimmy. In fact, he's positively beautiful."

Big brother William, who is 10, objects:

"I like Jimmy. He talks better than Johnny and he learns things quicker"

The Institute has decreed that Johnny and Jimmy must be allowed to do whatever they wish, and must not have their self-expression thwarted. This is at times trying, says Sister Ellen, who adds

"Sometimes they're a nuisance. At the hospital they told us not to interfere with them but to let them alone and give them what they want

"One night Jimmy insisted on having Johnny's bottle in addition to his own. Then Johnny started to cry, so we gave him Jimmy's bottle. That made Jimmy cry It really is a problem at times."

Sam Goldwyn Names 10 Stars of Film History

By International News Service

Hollywood, Oct. 12—Samuel Goldwyn, pioneer film producer and discoverer of many of the screen's most brilliant players, today named "the 10 outstanding stars in film history"

They were

Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Shearer, Mary Pickford, Marguerite Clark, Janet Gaynor, Greta Garbo, Clara Bow, and two who are dead, Wallace Reid and Marie Dressler

CHAPLIN TOPS LIST

"To name the 10 stars is extremely difficult," said Goldwyn. "Chaplin certainly must be given a commanding position. He is the greatest comedian the screen has ever produced, as great today as he was a generation ago because his comedy appeals more to the heart than to the wit

"Fairbanks achieved greatness by creating a screen character which is the direct opposite of Chaplin's. His appeal is directly to the imagination. He was the first to comprehend the screen's scope for the presentation of fantasy. He is the personification of vigor; of the American spirit of conquest.

"THE WOMAN'S IDEA"

"Norma Shearer represents the average woman's idea of what she herself would like to be, a combination of physical allure, daring spirit and mental brilliance.

"No list of 'greatest stars' can overlook Mary Pickford. She was the first green screen personality and her appeal was world-wide . . . she symbolized sweetness, honesty, simplicity, courage.

"Marguerite Clark was the only star who ever threatened to usurp Mary's throne. Her appeal, was almost the same as Mary's, but she was more vivacious .

"Of today's stars Janet Gaynor is the only one whose appeal is based on much the same qualities that made Mary and Marguerite so widely loved. Like them, she is small and dainty—unlike them, she appeals more to sentiment than to the deeper emotions.

FIRST 'SPHINX WOMAN'

"Greta Garbo is the screen's first 'sphinx woman.' Her greatness lies in her uncanny power to challenge and intrigue the imagination—she suggests mystery—is one of the most fascinating women in the world.

"Clara Bow, at career's height, was Garbo's exact opposite, typifying the jazz-mad period that brought her stardom . . . 'flaming youth' incarnate . . . Wallace Reid represented youth and wholesomeness.

"Miss Dressler is the tenth. Her career was remarkable . . . she progressed from the days of crude slapstick to the modern drama of 'Anna Christie' and 'Dinner at Eight.' There never will be another personality quite like her"

STIFF SATIN AND TAFFETA BROCADE in robe de style [illegible] cascading from a rose point cap fashioned the wedding gown of Miss Evelyn Royce, daughter of Mrs. [illegible] P. Royce and the late Mr. Royce of [illegible] [illegible] when she was married to Mr. [illegible] [illegible] H[illegible] [illegible] at Pine Knoll, Dedham . . . the Rev. [illegible] W[illegible] performed the ceremony.

MARTHA BIRD

Miss [illegible] Ames Baker was her [illegible] [illegible] wearing a [illegible] orange taffeta robe de style [illegible] autumn flower bouquet.

Mr. Frank A. Royce gave his sister in marriage . . . Mr. Lucius H[illegible] was the bridegroom's best man. The young couple will be at home in Dedham after November 1.

Miss Royce attended Westover School and was presented during the 192[illegible] season . . . is a popular [illegible] member of the Vincent Club . . . Junior League.

Mr. H[illegible] was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1924 . . . is a member of the Owl, Harvard Club, D. K. E. and The Brookline Country Club.

Martha Bird Makes Bow

EACH AUTUMN BRINGS its panorama of beauty . . . always the same, ever different! Cool, brisk country air . . . red gold and brown [illegible] against a clear blue sky . . . rustling leaves underfoot . . . the faint breath of frost . . . fragrant earthy smells . . . a mysterious hush along untravelled paths . . . the crackle of broken twigs . . . wood smoke.

Sensations . . . emotions . . . new life stirring . . . all the freshness of a new season bursting upon us. It was good to be alive as we drove out to the Dedham Polo and Country Club yesterday at midday to greet one of the loveliest of the season's buds, Miss Martha Bird, a petite Titian-haired lass with clear, creamy skin and an adorable smile . . .

She is the daughter of Mrs. George K. Bird of Norwood, who is as pretty and charming as her blossoming debutante . . . Miss Bird and her mother received in the dark-panelled reception room of the club, which was a bower of beautiful flowers of every kind and hue. Miss Alice Burrage, daughter of the Clarence Vose Burrages, a debutante of a few seasons ago, decorated the rooms for the occasion and they were very lovely. Miss Bird received many bouquets and handsome gifts on her arriving at the age of presentation . . . it is customary for old friends to send a debutante an expression of friendship and good wishes on the day of her debut and Miss Martha confided to us she is counting on certain little intimate bits of silk and lace to start a trousseau.

Gown of Shirred Blue Velvet

MISS BIRD RECEIVED in a long gown of shirred blue velvet with black hat, blue-feather trimmed . . . her bouquet was of vari-hued lavender pansies with a circle of sweetheart roses, tied with lavender satin . . . Mrs. Bird wore jade green velvet, with very high neckline and a shoulder corsage of lavender orchids. Over 200 guests greeted the newcomer to society, among them many of Mrs. Bird's friends, as well as the entire debutante list, almost.

Space forbids our mentioning all of the lovely girls we saw and chatted with . . . they were like a huge bouquet of autumn flowers, some like roses, lilies, violets, orchids, and other varieties suggested by their personalities and coloring . . . strongly reminiscent of a gardenia is Martha Endicott, cool, white and lovely, with dark hair and eyes . . . she wore the becoming yellow-gold touched with brown for her afternoon dress.

Like an American beauty rose is Mary Benton, daughter of the Jay Bentons with her rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and bright manner . . . her costume was of black with cowl collar of scarlet and a touch of the same bright shade in her hat.

Strawberry in an angora knit was the scheme which lovely Nancy Faxon selected for her daytime frock . . . perhaps she suggested the dainty strawberry blossom to us with her blue eyes, fair hair and blonde coloring. Dark brown with sunshine touches made an autumn wood nymph of Lydia Lyman, or maybe it was a mischievous smile and a keen sense of humor that seemed to light up her personality like a flame. Lucky the young girl who has learned to meet life with a smile . . .

Ruth Edmands in Brown Tweed Suit

WHAT A BUZZ OF CONVERSATION as this bevy were seated about small tables to enjoy a delicious lunch . . . a long table at one end of the room was covered with a cloth of silver, a centerpiece of mirrors and large silver bowls of white flowers. Tall and slender, Ruth Edmands was striking in brown tweed suit with cinnamon rust satin blouse and Kathleen Maynard's black crepe with silver cloth collar was exquisitely smart.

Ardelle Moseley

Faith Barney and Ardelle Moseley were on hand to greet their sister debutante notwithstanding the fact they had been presented at a dinner-dance the evening previous, which lasted until the wee sma' hours.

At a gay table sat Abigail Adams, a very pretty maiden though a bit serious, we thought, in sports tweeds, with jolly Ann Burnett, pretty Ann Donald, chic Anne Gallagher, and sweet-faced Ann Cole. Day-time sports clothes predominated at the luncheon, much to our surprise.

Sally Blackman was cute in striped wool . . . Katherine Keville wore brown and yellow checked wool attractively . . . Celia Durant was wearing the popular brown and gold . . . Natalie North chose bright light blue wool to offset her raven tresses . . . Dorothea Brown and Cynthia Northey were in tweeds . . . petite Priscilla Gano was very Park avenue in her tailored tweed suit . . . Josephine Muther was in afternoon dress of green and silver . . . There is no doubt but that silver and gold trimmings are THE favorite among the Fair Things.

DEBUTANTES HONOR SISTER BUD

MISS JOSEPHINE MUTHER MISS SALLY BLACKMAN

THE NEW SEASON'S DEBUTANTES turned out in large numbers yesterday to greet Miss Martha Bird, daughter of Mrs. George K. Bird of Norwood, when she made her debut at a luncheon at the Dedham Polo and Country Club. Honoring the new social bud were Miss Josephine Muther, daughter of the Lorenz Muthers of Newton, who wore an afternoon dress of green and silver, and Miss Sally Blackman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Blackman, of Brookline, whose costume was of wool. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Philomatheia Club to Open Its Season With Harvest Party

PHILOMATHEIA CLUB'S social season starts with a bang on Friday evening, October 19, when the annual harvest party for the smart young set is to be given at the Philomatheia Chalet in Chestnut Hill, from 8:30 to 12 o'clock.

This party, the proceeds of which are donated to the scholarship fund for Boston College, is one of the smartest of the fall affairs and is always attended by an attractive group of debs and their escorts.

A large committee has planned an evening of fun and entertainment, and invitations may be procured from Mrs. Daniel J. Holland, chairman, who is being assisted by Mrs. John Braudis, Mrs. Daniel Coveney, Mrs. William Bannan, Mrs. David Gentes, Mrs. Daniel J. Buckley, Mrs. Henry Tougas, Mrs. Frank Sullivan, and the attractive Misses Edith Dooley, Ann and Mary Holland, Eleanor O'Neill, Mary Bannan, Ruth Buckley, Mary Bryan, Peggy Rooney and Margery S[illegible].

GLANCING AROUND at the presentation tea at the Dedham Polo Club, for Miss Martha Bird, on Wednesday, we saw Mrs. Joseph R. McCoole, of Dedham, wearing a costume of smart black with a most becoming new beret. Miss Polly McCoole, also in black, a dashing Alpine hat giving the right note to the ensemble . . . Polly is taking up writing at the Adult Education Institute on Joy street and continuing with her music this winter; an attractive family group, Mrs. H. F. R. Dolan of Cambridge, in dark blue wool with pink lingerie touches, and the Misses Eleanor and Elizabeth Dolan . . . Ann Gallagher, of Milton, in snappy green tweed trimmed with Galyak . . . Frances Shea, of Brookline, whose presentation next month at the Algonquin Club is being anticipated, also in tweeds, with which she wore a strawberry sweater, and Catherine Walsh, of Brookline, dressed in softest rabbit's wool, in tones of green and gray . . . Catherine will also make her formal bow, some time this fall.

Fox Cape

Martha Rice Is Sister's Maid of Honor

AT A PICTURESQUE noonday service in the chapel at Milton Academy Miss Adelaide Rice became the bride today of Kennard Woodworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vernon Woodworth of Chestnut street, Boston.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallace Rice of Canton avenue, Milton, was given in marriage by her father and the Rev. Vivian Pomeroy was assisted in tying the knot by the Rev. Markham M. Stackpole. The wedding was attended by a small company of relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom.

Eggshell Satin

The bride carried a bouquet of white African daisies and snapdragon with her gown of lustrous eggshell satin over which her tulle and lace veil fell in graceful folds. Immediately preceding her down the aisle, streying rose petals in her path, was Miss Sylvia Winsor of Boston, the youthful flower girl frocked in peach colored net with a tiny brown velvet beret.

Miss Martha Rice was her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Margaret Woodworth, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Gertrude Peabody of Milton, Miss Louise K. Foot of New York, and Mrs. Richard T. Flood of Boton were the bridesmaids. They were all gowned alike in turquoise crepe with brown gridles and grown felt hats, and carried arm bouquets of chrysanthemums.

Mr. Alfred S. Woodworth of Boston attended his brother as best man. On the usher staff were the Messrs. Joseph W. Lund of Duxbury, Benjamin A. G. Thorndike, William I. Nichols, Arthur W. Rice, Jr., Arthur Vernon Woodworth, Jr., Edward Marshall, all of Boston, A. Goodwin Cooke and James H. Durgi of New York.

Home Reception

Immediately after the ceremony the reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rice. Mrs. Rice chose an ensemble of brown crepe with a brown hat for the occasion.

Last evening, the entire bridal party was entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford at their Milton home.

Today's bride is a member of the Vincent Club and Junior League. She was graduated from Milton Academy and from the Massachusetts General Hospital Training School for Nurses in 1934. Mr. Woodworth graduated from Harvard in 1926, where his clubs include the Hasty Pudding and Fox.

Notes Along the Line

By "Bravo"

SYMPHONY PRE-VUE

Now that the musical season is really started with the first program of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, "Bravo" will review briefly each week the background of the works to be played and will answer any points about the works that the readers may want to ask.

PASSACAGLIA-KOUSSEVITSKY

The term means a slow dance in triple rhythm—similar to a Chaconne, but more often in a minor key. It is played with much exaggeration — the dancers succeeding each other in a manner now found in such dances as the cake walk. The word is derived from the Spanish pasar calle (walking along the street) or variously from passo gallo (rooster step). Dr. Koussevitsky's treatment of the passacaglia, based on a traditional Russian theme, is scored for full orchestra.

SYMPHONY No. 2—BORODIN

Rosenfeld said that "Borodin's music is a reading of Russia's destiny in the book of her past." His vital enthusiasm by turn barbaric, again melodious, paints with vivid strokes a tapestry of ancient Russia, into which is woven the strands of the Ballet Russe and Prince Igor. Borodin and his circle make up for their lack of complete understanding of symphonic possibilities by their very sincerity. Borodin the patriot outweighed Borodin the technician. The Russians were hardly ready for the symphony in 1877 although Brahms had already written his epic FIRST the year before. Borodin, the chemist, mixed the ingredients of his music from the heart, not the head.

SYMPHONY in D minor—CESAR FRANCK

The symphonic best-seller—written when the composer was 66—first performed in Paris, Feb. 17, 1889—created a great disturbance between the D'Indys and their opponents—who considered the work discordant [illegible] and formless, the [illegible] dedication to Henri Duparc. The three note theme heard in the first movement is also common to Beethoven's sonata Les Adieux—the opening of Liszt's Les preludes and the second and third act of Wagner's Die Walkure. In the second movement is a yearning melody sung over plucked string chords with violas in counterpoint. The first theme of the last movement is joyously syncopated (a happy release!)—the finale a magnificent chorale.

We wish we could hear it again for the first time!

NEXT WEEK'S PROGRAM

BEETHOVEN'S Eroica—in memory of Sir George Henschel, the first American performance of Malipiero's Symphony—of the four seasons—and Brahms' variations on a theme by Haydn.

ERA

Conductor of the Outer South End ERA Community Chorus is Dorothy Richardson, a colored contralto of rare voice, a pupil of Margaret Clement — Mrs. Richardson has worked long and hard for her music and the success that comes from work well done should be hers.

For E. M. H.

BRAVO, since you ask, is supposed to express the writer's enthusiasm for music, his wish to attempt to widen the circle of readers who appreciate an art which [illegible] back so much to those who make the effort to [illegible] and understand it.

It is also a cry called from the far reaches of the theatre which can be used to [illegible] since as its gender [illegible] bravo for a woman, bravi for men, brave for women and collections it may be used to single out one or a group of artists and leave the others before the curtain unacclaimed. A reprehensible practise says "BRAVO."

Fete Planned for Visiting Italians

By BETTY DI PESA

The Italian National Fascist Militia Band is making a tour of the United States will make its Hub appearance at the Boston Garden Saturday and Sunday evenings. Composed of 75 players, this band termed as "Mussolini's Favorite" has drawn crowds in both New York and Chicago.

The Fascist Band recently won first prize in a national contest conducted in Italy.

On its arrival here it will be greeted by a delegation of leading Italians. Among them will be Judge Felix Forte, Judge Vincent Brogna, Cavalier Joseph A. Tomasello, Felix Marcella, Senator Joseph Langone, Alexander Drinkwater, and Prince Santosuosso, editor of the Italian News.

2 STATES HUNT 'BABY FACE' AND 'PRETTY BOY'

(Copyright 1934 by Universal Service)

New Hampton, Iowa, Oct. 12—Charles ("Pretty Boy") Floyd, Oklahoma desperado, another man believed to be George ("Baby Face") Nelson, ace machine gunner of the Dillinger gang and an unidentified companion out-shot and outran a pair of officers near McIntire and escaped into Minnesota, finally doubling back on their trail toward this city.

The identification of Nelson as a companion of Floyd was made by Sheriff William Owens, while State Agent Art Haight identified Floyd in a conversation with authorities who massed for the state's widest manhunt along the Minnesota-Iowa borders.

In the current gun fight at McIntire the outlaws repeatedly fired on Art Haight, agent of the Iowa bureau of identification, and Sheriff Owens. But none was injured despite the withering exchange of machine gun, revolver and rifle shots.

Floyd and his two companions have been working on a farm at McIntire for the past several days, Agent Haight said. He prepared to trap them with the aid of several sheriffs and their deputies.

In reconnoitering, Haight and Deputy Sheriff Owens drove past the farmhouse to see if Floyd's car was there. They saw the car, and as they continued down the road a distance Floyd spotted them, and apparently recognized Owens. Turning back, the officers saw Floyd rush into the house and then return to his car and drive away, summoning his companions from their work in the fields by tooting his auto horn.

The outlaws then leaped into their car and drove within ten feet of the officers, spraying them with machine gun fire, but neither of the officers was hit. They could not return the fire at short range because of the intensity of the outlaws' blast of bullets.

Two States Hunt Bandits

"BABY FACE" NELSON

"PRETTY BOY" FLOYD

AUTO FINANCE HEAD TRAILED

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 12—Belief was expressed by police today that Frank A. Tillman, 42, and his secretary, Miss Beatrice Kaufman, had fled to Mexico, following discovery of a $250,000 shortage in accounts of the finance company Tillman headed.

The man's deserted wife and her sister, Miss Catherine Sharp, have joined forces with the law to effect Tillman's return. Judge Henry H. Hunt, appointed receiver for the firm, said that evidence showed Tillman had $25,000 in cash with him.

The trail of the missing man and girl led detective to New York. There, in a hotel room, they found Tillman's clothing and baggage. There was evidence he wanted his pursuers to think he committed suicide, they said. They refused to disclose what evidence.

Miss Kaufman's apartment in New York also appeared to have been left suddenly, police asserted.

The shortages in the automobile finance company have occurred over a period of two years, investigators declared. Two men, Thomas J. Loveday and Louis A. Gerand, officials in the company, are held in $10,000 on conspiracy charges in connection with the case.

All Business at Fish Pier Halted

Between the holiday and the strike of fish handlers, all business on the Fish Pier was at a standstill today. Fifteen policemen were on guard.

The fifth day of the strike found about half the Boston fishing fleet still at sea. Crews of these boats are expected to join the 1100 strikers after they return and unload their own catches.

Xenia Passes Up Title as Princess

By Associated Press

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 12—Xenia Leeds, Princess Xenia of Russia and Mrs. William B. Leeds are no more.

The divorced wife of the tin plate king is to be known in the future simply as Miss Xenia Romanoff. She obtained a court ruling granting her permission to resume her [illegible] yesterday.

The daughter of the late Grand Duke George of Russia in her petition asking that she be allowed to use her family name said that the profusion of names created a "situation of great inconvenience" and that she desired "to assume my family name in order to avoid confusion of identity and any question of the legality of the name by which I am now known."

The new Miss Romanoff was married to William B. Leeds October 9, 19[illegible] and divorced him May 3, 19[illegible]. She now lives on a small estate at [illegible], Long Island, a short distance from her former husband's home.

Wife of Banker Simon Swig Dies

Mrs. Pearl Fanny Swig, 71, wife of Simon Swig, banker, of 57 Beaconsfield road, Brookline, died at their home today after a short illness.

She is survived by seven sons, three daughters, two brothers, Edward Levy of New York and Eli Levy of Boston, and two sisters, Mrs. Bernard Yaffee and Mrs. Samuel Yaffee of Brookline and Roslindale.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Samuel Under Knife

Glasgow, Oct. 12 (AP)—Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader in the House of Commons, was operated upon last night for appendicitis.

BEATINGS PUT 2 IN HOSPITALS

Brutal attacks in Charlestown and the West End sent two men to Haymarket relief station today suffering from fractured skulls.

Summoned to a parked car in Main street, Charlestown, Bernard Cusack, 25, of Frothingham avenue, Charlestown, was beaten with an iron bar. His condition is serious. Police picked up one man as a suspect. Two were said to have been in the car when Cusack was attacked.

The second of the day's victims was James Corrigan, Jr., 22, of Warren street, Revere. Someone hit him on the head with a pitcher at the Imperial Cafe in Cambridge street, West End, according to the police report.

Martin Flannigan, of Sprague street, Revere, who took Corrigan to the hospital, named the alleged pitcher wielder. A short time later John Huddeston, 23, of West Newton street, South End, was arrested at the cafe, and charged with [illegible]

Dubord Gains 276 Votes in Recount

Augusta, Me., Oct. 12—With ballots from six of the state's 16 precincts already recounted, F. Harold Dubord today showed a net gain of 276 votes over the original count, which gave the winner, U. S. Senator Frederick Hale (R), a plurality of 1[illegible]1. The recount is being conducted at the request of Dubord.

Alfonso Leases Villa

Rome, Oct. 12 (AP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain apparently will spend the winter in Rome, judging from the fact that he has taken a six months' lease on the villa of Tito Ruffo, opera singer, in the new North City suburb.

'Daddy Browning' Is Dead at 63

Dorothy "Sunshine" Browning, adopted daughter, and her husband, Clarence Hood of Di[illegible], N. C., were reported to have been at the bedside of Browning when he died.

Shortly after the death was announced Mrs. "Peaches" Browning, the widow, was interviewed over the telephone. She is staying in a New York hotel between theatrical engagements. In a broken voice she said:

"I am so sorry to hear of Mr. Browning's death. No matter what has happened in the past—I am very, very sorry. This has upset me so much I do not know what my future plans are."

She said she had dropped her divorce suit some time ago when she had been in Chicago.

As the widow of the [illegible] "Peaches" is [illegible] the New York law [illegible] in the estate.

WORTH $7,000,000

[illegible] Browning's [illegible]

She said that the widow and Browning's first wife were mentioned in the will. But he indicated the bulk of the estate was to be earmarked to charity and institutions for the care of poor children.

It was reported there were large bequests to Browning's sister, Mrs. George Briggs of Montclair, N. J., and to Dorothy "Sunshine," his adopted daughter.

Dorothy Sunshine told how he died. She said:

"His last words were to thank the doctors and nurses for their attention to him.

HOPED HE HAD DONE GOOD

"Just before he sank into his last coma he said 'I hope I have done good in life.'"

Browning, who was 63 years old, was reported to have written of himself:

"He is a favorite in the social world."

Other biographers were less discreet about his career. They said he was a publicity seeker.

Such a view of him was likewise held by the Carmel, N. Y., Supreme Court justice who presided in the sensational separation trial which made the words "Daddy" and "Peaches" appear like labels on newsstands the country over. The justice thought Browning "enjoyed the foolish publicity."

The public thought of him as a fatuously wealthy real estate man with a penchant for adopting young girls. The headlines of his publicity, besides, formed a daily jumble of "Daddy," "Marion Sunshine," "Mary Spas," "Peaches Heenan," "Ard[illegible]," "Investigation," "Wed," "Bunny"—another short name for himself and the usual shortened pithy terms that go with any widely publicized affair of the heart.

Unscrambling this jumble it is found that "Daddy" or "Bunny" was born on October 14, 1874, at 54 West 50th street, Manhattan.

His parents were Edward Franklin Browning and the former Lucy A. Richardson. He went to Columbia Law School, then into partnership with his father in the real estate business.

WORKED LIKE A HORSE

In his own words he devoted himself "to the study and advancement of New York real estate" and "worked like a horse until he was 40."

He specialized in midtown West Side real estate and was one of the pioneers in the later to be populous colonies around Broadway and 72nd street. W. E. D. Stokes built the Ansonia Hotel there. The subway opened up phenomenal development in the section and Browning began to make money hand over fist.

She was Nellie Adele Lowen, a former Follies girl, half his age.

He married her.

He installed her in a bizarre apartment at 3[illegible] West 85th street. In the apartment he built a garden with a miniature lake and rare tropical plants.

Newspapers of the time depicted the place graphically and said the furnishings cost him $250,000.

They were divorced in 1924. Out of the apartment he moved to his office a stuffed snake, a collection of carved chairs, paintings, Oriental vases and rugs, cushions brocaded in gold, and sold the rest for $53,000.

BEGIN ADOPTIONS

Two other incidents, before the divorce, put him into the headlines. He announced during the war that he would stage an airplane demonstration over New York to show how easily the city would succumb to the air forces of Germany, and he and his wife each adopted a little girl.

Browning's little girl was Marion Sunshine. Shortly after the divorce he inserted an advertisement in the papers announcing his desire to adopt a companion for her.

Mary Spas, a Bohemian girl, answered the advertisement. She said she was 16. He adopted her. He found she was 21. He cancelled the adoption.

Then he met Frances "Peaches" Heenan, 15-year-old daughter of a trained nurse.

THIRD "CINDERELLA"

"Peaches" was immediately hailed as his third "Cinderella girl." The Children's Society launched an investigation.

Somebody threw acid on "Peaches" as she slept in her mother's apartment, burning her face and neck. The police investigated but found no clues.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children began to doubt Mrs. Heenan's fitness to continue as her daughter's guardian. It ordered her to appear in children's court.

In the midst of all these investigations "Daddy" and "Peaches" slipped off to Cold Springs, N. Y., and were married.

ROMANCE LAST YEAR

Less than a year later they were in court at Carmel, N. Y., before Justice A. H. Seeger and were charging each other with more than the usual causes of domestic wrecking. She said he was miserly and abnormal and a lot of things between. The court didn't believe her.

Browning had begun the suit for separation, on the ground of abandonment. The justice ruled in his favor but not without criticizing him and "Peaches'" alimony allowance of $300 a week was cut off.

The court pointed out that if she was not interested in Browning's money, as she testified, she should have sued for annulment on the ground she was too young to marry.

The decision sent "Peaches" to bed in tears. She later turned to vaudeville.

In later years Browning developed a fear complex against blackmail. He traveled with a bodyguard who never left his side. The bodyguard moved along the sidelines even when "Daddy" was dancing with a pulchritudinous partner.

In an interview given shortly before his illness, Browning said that he expected to live to be 100 because he worked 18 hours a day and ate uncooked oats.

LELAND WOMAN SOON FREE

Hazel B. Leland, sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction in June, 1933, for participation in the so-called "Gift Family" swindle, will be released shortly from East Cambridge jail, it was learned today.

Miss Leland's full sentence will be ended October 26.

Mrs. Florence C. Hascall, widow of a Boston University trustee and alleged ringleader of the swindle, is serving a two-year sentence in the same institution.

It was alleged at the trial that the women got hundreds of people to invest money in a scheme in which the investors were to be paid large profits by a millionaire philanthropist. The money was lost in the stock market and spent on clothing and jewelry, authorities alleged, and no trace of any "gift philanthropist" could be found.

JACKSON CO-EDS DIG UP CAMPUS

KATHERINE MURRAY MARGARET BRAINERD LORAINE CARRIEL MARION JEPSON ANITA LINSER

Here's how Uncle Sam sends his nieces through college. These girls—Katherine Murray, of Greenwich, Ct.; Margaret Brainerd, of Salem; Loraine Carriel, of Claremont, N. H.; Marion Jepson, of Walpole, and Anita Linser, of Bronxville, N. Y.—are Jackson College students who are employed by the ERA. An education is worth a little work, they say, besides—golf clubs are as hard on your hands as shovels.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

People who make it a point to watch the sort of thing that public men and other orators say on anniversary occasions and holidays will remember that frenzied outburst of oratory on Columbus Day a year ago. For once a more or less stereotyped occasion was pie for the speakers.

Robert E. Rogers

The discovery of a new economic and social world! Sail on! Sail on! Franklin Christopher Columbus Roosevelt, the fearless mariner sailing the trackless seas straight toward Utopia. A new continent added to the old world .. new adventure. Exploring the unexplored. A world of hitherto unknown prosperity waiting to be landed on, across the uncharted seas of economics and politics. And so on and so on.

I shall be a little curious, tomorrow, to read what the orators are saying this year. In view of the fact that I am to be one of them, in a modest way, I am even a little curious to know what I am going to say. I am not sure yet. Perhaps a preliminary canter in this column will help me clear my mind.

There will undoubtedly be far less unanimity of opinion than there was last year. There may be a convinced minority who will declare that Columbus has already landed on San Salvador and that the golden riches of Ind lie ready to be exploited, once Columbus has gotten rid of the hostile Indians—meaning the Republicans. I do not expect that minority to be very large, for, even to the most ignorant, we have obviously not landed. We are still sailing. It may be that the drifting tree branches and weary birds perching on the rigging show that land is not very far off. We strain our eyes, full of faith, hoping to see a light moving somewhere in the blackness ahead.

There will be others—and they will be many—who will insist that we have lost our bearings, that we are off our course, sailing only towards that mythical Land of Cockayne, where man has only to lie under the trees and let the ripe fruit drop in his mouth, where little roasted pigs run about with knife and fork in their bellies, crying "come and eat me"—and where mankind lives and is fat without doing a stroke of work, in the shade of the ham-tree and the shelter of the big rock-candy mountains where the rivers of beer flow free.

And some, forgetting Columbus, will cry out that we are like Sinbad, swiftly being drawn toward the magnetic mountain of Socialism or Communism, or what have you, only to have the iron nails drawn shrieking from our planks until the seams part and the helpless ship goes down.

You pays your money and you takes your choice.

But it will appear, at least to the thoughtful, that mere enterprise, boldness, courage, fearlessness, determination—all the traditional qualities of Columbuses setting out on an unknown sea—are perhaps not as important as good seamanship, exact navigation, a skilled and loyal crew, and, above all, one authority and one alone on the bridge. If there be too frequent shifting of first officers, from Johnson to Richeson, for instance, if the lookouts are looking for different landing places, some one port and some another, if there be smothered mutiny in the ranks, all will not necessarily go well.

But above all it would seem highly important that the Navigator himself knows where he is heading for. Is it to be where Africa's sunny fountains roll down their golden sand? Is it to be fabled and Uptopian Cathay or India, where the age-old dreams of men will come true? Or will it be the stern and rock-bound coast, an unintentional landing place, where the old, old laws still hold [illegible], where the codfish are plentiful, only you have to fish for them, and where you dig clams all winter to have strength to hoe corn all summer and hoe corn all summer to have strength to dig [illegible] winter.

Last year we all expected a speedy and safe landing. Out of the depression trenches by Christmas! But the war lasted longer. We are still estimating five million families to be [illegible] this next winter by government money. We ask ourselves: Is the Navigator aiming for Recovery or is he setting his course for the far-off and poorly charted coasts of Reform. We are battened under hatches; we have no means of knowing whither we are sailing. Occasionally the Navigator speaks to us soothingly, if a little vaguely, through a microphone.

All honor to Columbus! He was brave, he was persevering, he had the right idea. But his was a comparatively simple task. He was dealing with things that stayed put. The American continent, for instance. Was it Mark Twain who remarked that he couldn't very well have missed it? And his compass, however elementary, did, after all, point steadily to the North. In comparison our Navigator's is a stupendous task.

We know he keeps on calling. We know he can't help landing somewhere. How curious if the land he sights should turn out to be, not golden Cathay, but America—if we all might find ourselves at home again.

Brighton Woman Is Killed As Taxi-Auto Crash

Miss Louise P. Walsh, 27, of Boulevard terrace, Brighton, was instantly killed early today when her automobile crashed headon into a taxicab in Commonwealth avenue, Brighton.

Charles J. Earardi, 29, of Lawn street, Roxbury, operator of the taxicab, was cut and bruised about the shoulder. A passenger in the cab, William C. Lewis of New York city, who said he was a guest at the Statler Hotel, was shaken up.

The girl was driving a small coach, registered to herself and was making a left turn off Commonwealth avenue into Gorham street when the crash occurred.

Police believe her skull was fractured when she was hurled against the windshield. Both her machine and the taxicab were badly damaged.

Four to Face Court Charges in Abduction of Hull Girl

Water, "with some sugar in it," made Patricia Packard, 17-year-old Hingham high school girl so dizzy she couldn't recall much of what happened for days afterwards, Hull [illegible] day.

Pursuing their investigation of the alleged abduction of the girl from Hull, officials said that she told them that during the "dizzy" spell she began to "enjoy" movies and night clubs with several men.

Two men and a woman were locked up in connection with the [illegible] Boston yesterday, by police, who have been hunting her. A man and a woman were with the girl.

The men will be charged with abduction; the woman with being an accessory. A [illegible] arraignment in Abington court tomorrow.

Lieutenant William Marshall of Hull police said that the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claremont Packard of Main street, Hull told him she had been enticed aboard a motor boat as she was [illegible] the boat landing at Pemberton. Fourmen were aboard.

The next day she was taken to the woman's home, according to the story. There she took off all her own clothes and donned a complete new outfit.

The water "with sugar in it" and the dizzy spell followed.

NEW YORK

DAY BY DAY

New York, Oct. 12—Thoughts while strolling: What became of F. Scott Fitzgerald's declaration to end it all at 35? It's all right with me if I never read another line about Mrs. McLean's Hope diamond. What a marvelously shaped head Charlie Winninger has! The city's no place for police dogs.

O. O. McIntyre

May Murray doesn't look a day older. The disconsolate valet C. B. Dillingham had for [illegible] years, wandering around lost. Never see Leon Friedman, [illegible] advance agent, any more. Who remembers when bills were frogskins? The frequently dramatized press agent, Richard Maney.

Add firm friendships: Verne Porter and Luther Reed. Fred Astaire and Jimmy Gleason bear a resemblance. Dick Berlin saunters like Otis Skinner. One author never seen at literary teas—Faith Baldwin. After hearing the blues singers I'll take Blossom Seely. With Benny Fields crooning off side.

Few places fascinate me [illegible] those sinister Roaring 40 hotels that change names with each scandal. Almost any sissy looks he-mannish in a big white turtle necked sweater. Maybelle Manning's fireman-red awning. Al Woods, chin up, is still sweethearting around. A brave Roman!

The philanthropic delicatessener Reuben. Shakespeare used like as a conjunction and was pretty good. Eddie Guest, whom the poets say can't rhyme, makes the most money of all. A comic cosmos! Conversaton piece: "I can scarcely wait to get home to turn on Rudy Vallee."

Since the Dillinger flare-up, plastic surgeons of the tenderloin are especially wary of strange patients. They are taking no chances. Two or three who were said to perform facial changes with no questions have closed offices and left precipitately for parts unknown. And the tattoo specialists on the Bowery must report to the police before removing any of their handiwork.

Twenty-five years ago there was not a woman well known in the field of cartooning and caricature. It appeared a creative world for men only. But all that has changed. Some of the most dexterous delineators of the American comedy now are women. The New Yorker introduced many, and they include Mabel Dwight, Helen Hodkinson, Alice Harvey, Mary Petty and Beatrice Shermund. Over in England, too, such publications in a lighter vein as Sketch are giving increasing space to the humorous feminine viewpoint.

The auspicious movie first night of the season was the debut of Grace Moore's film at Music Hall. It flushed out the Diamond Horseshoe opera crowd in high hats and chinchilla and the biggest flock of chauffeur-driven limousines since the dollar dived. For some of the lorgnetted dowagers it was a first view of a cinema. Frightfully quaint, frightfully!

Gilbert Miller's recent Atlantic crossing numbers somewhere in the several hundreds. He quit counting after 300. There was one especial year when he spent 23 weeks to and froing on liners. One of the advantages of his voyaging is that on land he exercises very little, but aboard ship he walks miles.

The most astonishing traveler, to literary folk, is Bob Davis. During his magazine editing days he could not be lured out of the city even for a week-end in the country. For years one of his longest jaunts was to Washington, D. C. When he gave up his editorial task he began to roam and in 12 years has been to every corner of the globe. If he stays in town more than a month he becomes crotchety and uncompanionable. His pockets are always stuffed with timetables and sea charts.

One wonders what Julian Eltinge, back on Broadway for a looksee, thinks of the flock of roughed and smirking female impersonators for which he blazed the trail. Eltinge's art, when he opened a theater bearing his name, was without effeminacy. As many learned when they came to from socks after falsettoing "Yoo hoo" as he passed along. Before his advent female impersonators were confined to burlesque only. He was best of the guild.

From a lecture report: "He spoke at length and learnedly of cosmic rays and suddenly turned to the topic of newspaper columnists."

DESHLER JURY TO VISIT INN

When the trial of James Deshler, 43, of Roxbury, charged with the murder a year ago of Adolph Sommer, Cambridge manufacturer, resumes Monday, the jury will visit the Wrenmere Inn, in Wrentham, scene of the defendant's arrest.

In a reversal of opinion, Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics expert, testified in Middlesex superior criminal court, that the revolver, taken from three suspects now released, did not fire the death bullet.

In a report made last February, Amburgh stated that the revolver was probably the fatal weapon.

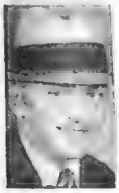
B. C.'s David Takes On Fordham Goliath Speaking of "Cav" ↕ And the Sporting Character of Late Boston College Teams

By AUSTEN LAKE

NOTRE DAME FOOTBALL TEAMS under Old No. 1, the late Knute Rockne, never rolled up any mileage by inching along in short dribs. They feinted and thrust, always with the idea of drilling a touchdown from any range on the field.



Austen Lake

All Rockne plays were imagined by their author as perfect plays in which, if nobody took a divot with his cleats or jiggled his elbow, any amount of desired ground could be unwound.

There are more than 100 of the Old Master's pupils practicing his teachings among the colleges in the land.

NOW, OF COURSE, B. C. IS NOT a Rockne type of football college, being taught by a portly young man named Joe McKenney, who studied under the late Major Frank Cavanaugh.

I have often heard the Major say in his snory, lawyer's voice that Rockne had swiped most of his stuff from a little book which the Major printed back in the days of hay-filled shoulder pads and quilted breeches.

So, possibly, B. C. does not know that all Notre Dame plays, which is to say Fordham's plays today, are perfect plays, and may go innocently blundering into the nerve center of things to gum them up and lay the brawnier team by the heels, as it has often done before.

INSTEAD of B. C. JAMMING Crowley's fine, goose-stepping and swift-meshing plays, I would like to see Fordham playing Holy Cross, which is also cut on the old Rockne pattern.

Both Fordham and Holy Cross are casting sweetheart glances at the Rose Bowl tournament next New Year, which is the football World Series.

And where Fordham has coined the slogan:

"From Rose Hill—which is their campus where Edgar Allen Poe used to stroll in the twilight of long ago—to Rose Bowl," Holy Cross has nominated itself as a sticker-candidate for the same office.

Now it would be odd—though I do not predict it as likely—if B. C., being a an un-Rockne, and therefore a non-union style of team, would bust both of these pretty Maroon and Purple balloons.

IN LATE YEARS LITTLE of the freight-handler, engine-stoker type of strength has fallen Joe McKenney's way, and he has worked his occasional miracles with average lads who happened to stray into the college because the gates were left open suggestively. He has taken his few blessings in the way of grizzly athletes who came along, unteased, and pieced them out with pony types to upset logic and win many games from bigger and physically better teams.

The reputation, if not the character, of B. C. teams has changed under his teaching until today officials will tell you that his lads handle docilely and say "Yes, sir" and "Please" in the proper places.

How much of B. C.'s rugged, rowdy reputation in the old Cavanaugh day was justified, I do not know, though I suspect that it was a hear-say character for the most part, pinned on any Cavanaugh product because of the Major's boisterous he-man style.

For in my sight Cav was a hell-for-leather sort, who taught hard, punishing football without a cheat in a carload.

I said it then, as I say it now, having the quaint theory that if a man is a mucker in life he remains a mucker in memory after death. And the reverse is also true, as I apply it to Cav.

OF COURSE, A SPRINKLING of uncouth characters will get into any football set, and one profane, gouging character can stain a whole battalion with the same tint.

I suspect that Cav, being a professional, or career coach of the old school, went out on his own and covertly lassooed a few young buffaloes, whose barrel chests and bolster thighs were their only passport to higher education.

It was a common practice in his day, and he did what everybody else was doing, and which a few still do.

That, and the fact that B. C. alumni of the day, blundered into a rift with Harvard!

Well, B. C. swallowed its dose, which was increasing difficulty in making up a suitable football schedule, and tidied its athletic household until it is now as spotless as any in the land.

I RECALL A B. C.-VILLANOVA GAME of two years ago, when John Freitas, the B. C. safety man, intercepted a forward pass so close to the turf that none of the officials could say whether he had "trapped" it or caught it in the air.

And as Freitas ran 60 yards upfield the officials nibbled the nipples of their horns in a fit of uncertainty.

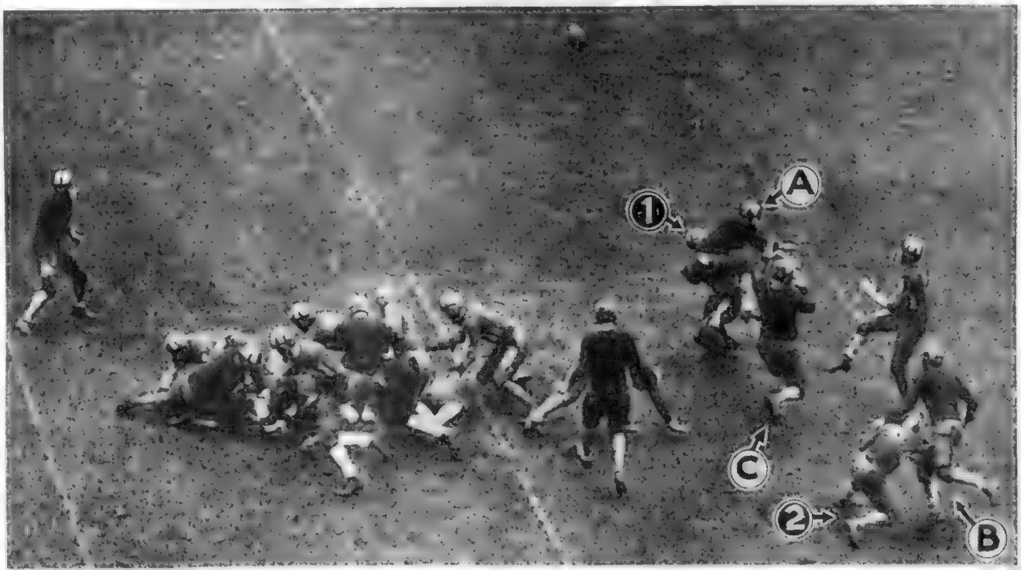
Finally, after an unfruitful huddle, one of them went to Freitas and said:

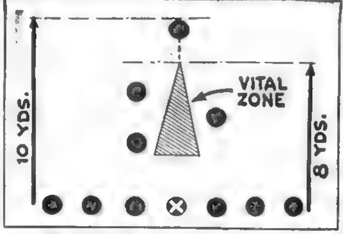
"Now, son, we don't know. But your word is final. Did you catch the ball in the air or off the ground? And the lad, without hesitation, said: "It hit the ground first."

It cost Freitas a 50-yard run and a momentary glint of heroism. But it made a shining mark in the lexicon of the college game.

Because years after the last echo of the crowd's cheers have faded in his memory, Freitas will still recall that he passed a quiz on character and refused to sell out for a tinsel bit of glory.

Harvard Backs' Failure to Protect Perils Kicker at Stadium





In protecting the kicker there is what is called the "vital zone," as shown in the chart. That zone is sacred ground—under all circumstances it must be kept inviolate. This picture shows only too distinctly that Harvard did not live up to this responsibility. Note that back No. 1 is on the wrong side of A, pushing him INTO the vital zone rather than out of it. No. 2 has wasted himself on B who under no circumstances could get into the vital zone, leaving C a clear path. B may have intentionally decoyed No. 2 wide to permit C to cut inside. A feint, however, at B to keep him wide and a solid block on C would have assured protection.

FORDHAM WILL BEAT EAGLES, SAYS LITTLE

By Lou Little

Head Coach, Columbia University

(Copyright 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Oct. 12—The game here in the East that will perhaps attract the most attention tomorrow will be Pitt and Southern California.

Southern California, losing to Washington State, naturally has taken a slight edge off this intersectional contest. In spite of this it is going to be a game that will be worth traveling to see.

Southern California is a team that has looked poorly and then turned around a week hence and upset some outstanding eleven. They are not going to upset Pittsburgh because they will find a team that knows what it's all about.

They have been well coached, and in Dr. Jock Sutherland, Pittsburgh has an instructor who can really teach the fundamentals as well a advanced ideas.

MANHATTAN ON WAY UP

This year the Pittsburgh offense seems to be exceptionally well balanced. Their forward passing has been exceptionally good, and the running attack has been improved.

Fordham was to receive its first real test today when it faces Boston College. There is hardly any doubt as to the ability of the Rams, and they should win from their sister Jesuit institution, but only after a hard contest.

Manhattan should win from Georgetown by a margin of two or three touchdowns. The Manhattan team did an exceptional job last Saturday in playing Kansas State to a tie.

We must not lose sight of the fact that Chick Meehan's boys are 50 per cent sophomores and have not had the experience necessary. This team will be a hard one to win from in the next week or two.

There are several games here in the east where a break one way or the other may decide the winner. The Penn-Yale meeting can very easily be decided in the first few

'Schoolboy' and Wife Start Honeymoon

By Universal Service

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 12—"Schoolboy" Rowe, Detroit Tiger pitching idol, and his Eldorado, Ark., childhood sweetheart, Miss Edna Mary Skinner, were on their honeymoon today as Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood T. Rowe.

In sharp contrast to the hectic days of the World Series, just closed, a quiet and simple ceremony was performed with only a few of "Schoolboy's" closest friends present.

The wedding was in the hotel here where the couple was staying. The Rev. H. L. Calkins of the Preston Methodist Church officiated.

Ervin ("Pete") Fox, Tiger right fielder, was best man, and Mrs. Fox attended Miss Skinner. Gerald Walker, utility center fielder, and Mrs. Walker, were the only other Tiger couple at the ceremony.

Manager Mickey Cochrane and other Tiger players, however, telephoned their congratulations to the newlyweds.

They would not say where their honeymoon would be spent, but they are to return shortly to El Dorado where a "home-coming" celebration is waiting for them.

Magic Coin Leans Toward Macaluso

LEN MACALUSO MEETS COUNT AT GARDEN

MAIN EVENT

Count Zarynoff, Ukraine, vs. Len Macaluso, Colgate.

SEMI-FINAL

Everett Marshall, Colorado, vs. Casey Kazanjian, Stanford.

PRELIMINARIES

Tommy Thompson, California, vs. John Spellman, Brown

Billy Bartush, Chicago, vs. George Jenkins, New York.

Bob Russell, Newport, vs. George Kohler, Cornell.

John Malmberg, Worcester, vs. Jerry Turner, Texas.

(First bout at 8 15—Main event at 10 p. m.)

By Jack Conway

Len Macaluso, former Colgate star, and Count Zarynoff, Ukranian grappler, will battle at the Garden tonight for the right to meet Ed Don George in a bout for the world heavyweight wrestling championship.

Macaluso was on his way to the championship two years ago when he met with a leg injury which temporarily held up his mat surge. He has since got going on high again He recently knocked off Ernie Dusek in a stirring tussle at the Garden

Macaluso is a big, rangy fellow He stands well over six feet and weighs 225 pounds. He will have a 30-pound weight margin on the colorful Zarynoff

Zarynoff first came to this country at the time of the Gus Sonnenberg boom. He drew $40,000 when pitted against the old Dynamiter in the Garden

Bruins May Beat Crimson in Line, Says Hardwick

By H. R. (Tack) Hardwick

(All-time, all-America back at Harvard)

Tomorrow Harvard faces Brown. Rivalry between these New England colleges dates back to 1890, when Brown drew first blood with a a 22 to 8 victory. Since that meeting these teams have battled 34 times—Harvard winning 26 of the games, Brown seven and one game ending in a scoreless tie.

H. R. HARDWICK

There have been many highlights to these contests. Harvard graduates will long remember Roy Randall in 1926 and Fritz Pollard in 1916, as the Brown Bear swept to victory by a score of 21 to 0 in each instance.

Memories of Earl Sprackling are still vivid, nor can one forget Crowther of All-America fame in 1912.

The Crimson was literally swamping Brown. She was leading, 30 to 3, near the end of the fourth period. Brown's quarterback, diminutive George Crowther, was wobbling on his feet, apparently completely played out.

P. D. Haughton from the Harvard sidelines sent in word to the officials, suggesting that Crowther be taken from the game as in his exhausted condition a serious injury might be incurred. He certainly looked "out on his feet."

Most Games Won or Lost in Line

Robinson, the Brown mentor, decided otherwise.

The game continued. A few plays later Crowther electrified the stands with a spectacular run, weaving and straight-arming his way through the entire Harvard team, much to the satisfaction of Coach Robinson and to the hearty amusement and chagrin of Percy Haughton.

This year the outcome is about a toss-up, with the chances

MANIACI'S 63-YARD TOUCHDOWN RUN GIVES FORDHAM LEAD

25,000 WATCH RAMS SCORE IN FIRST PERIOD

But passes by Flaherty, Brennan and Moynahan were missed each time on the goal line itself.

The Eagles produced just 13 first downs by rushing and seven by passing to four for their favored opponents. The Rams came up with just one first down in the second half, while the Eagles made nine.

FIRST PERIOD

Joe Maniaci crashed through the center for five yards. Sarausky then cut through right tackle for 15 yards for a first down on the 40-yard line. Maniaci circled his left end for nine yards, but Boston held for two downs. Sarausky then punted for 48 yards, which rolled out of bounds on B. C.'s 5-yard line. Tom Brennan, retreating deep into his own end zone, got away a 77-yard boot which was downed by Ohrenberger on Fordham's 30-yard line. Maniaci ripped off two yards. Boston was penalized five yards for off-side. Here Maniaci cut through his left tackle and with his interference mowing down one Boston tackler after another weaved his way 63 yards for a sensational touchdown, Joe Curran nailing him just after he had crossed the goal line. Maniaci's try for point went wide of the mark.

Score—Fordham 6, B. C. 0.

Boston College chose to receive, Sarausky booting the ball over the B. C. zone on the fly. B. C. kicked to the Fordham 44-yard line, where the ball was downed.

Maniaci made five yards on an off tackle play and a lateral developing out of a forward, Sarausky to Paquin to Maniaci, gave Fordham a first down on the B. C. 41-yard line. Sarausky hit through center for ten yards, but fumbled when hit. Flaherty recovering for the Eagles on the B. C. 31-yard line.

A Flaherty to Bob Curran 25-yard pass grounded when Curran dropped the ball. Brennan punted to Palau, who ran it back to his 45-yard line. Palau replaced Harlow at quarterback for Fordham. After failing to gain on two downs Sarausky punted to Flaherty, who was downed on his 30-yard line after a 5-yard run back.

B. C. took time out. A forward, Brennan to Furbush, gave B. C. a first down on its 41-yard line. Maniaci intercepted a B. C. forward pass on his 41-yard line and ran it back to B. C. 41-yard line.

Flaherty intercepted Sarausky's pass and ran it back to his own 30-yard line. On a wide end sweep Bob Curran made six yards. Avery lost eight yards on a sweep around his right end. Brennan punted to Palau, who was downed in his tracks on his 25-yard line. McDermott replaced Palau for Fordham. Time was taken out for B. C.

Score end first period—Fordham 6, B. C. 0.

SECOND PERIOD

DOES THE CIGAR YOU SMOKE HAVE REAL HAVANA?

Before you answer—just remember this. "Imported tobacco" doesn't always mean "Havana tobacco." And smokers know that without Havana no cigar can possibly give that full enjoyment you should get from your smoke.

Today—for 5c—you can get Havana. That's exactly what Bayuk PHILLIES gives you . . long-filler Havana blended with the finest domestic tobacco grown. The same quantity and quality of Havana—the same exact blend—as when PHILLIES was the largest-selling 10c brand in America.

Have you tried PHILLIES? More men smoke it than any other cigar on the market. Isn't this convincing proof that it's the Havana in PHILLIES that makes it the one cigar—regardless of price—that smokers like best?

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

DeMar Captures N. H. Run

By International News Service

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 12.—Clarence De Mar, the veteran hill and dale plodder, is still winning marathons.

This afternoon he led a pack of 32 over the cement Daniel Webster highway from Boscawen to Manchester in the fast time of 2 hours 36 minutes and 15½ seconds for the marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards.

HANLEY PICKS BROWN OVER HARVARD

TERRIER, JUMBO GAME TOSSUP, SAYS COACH

By L. B. "Pat" Hanley
Head Coach at Boston University
Written exclusively for and copyrighted by the Boston American and the International News Service

New England's football attention will be focused over at the Stadium tomorrow afternoon to see how Harvard and Brown fare in their first real test of the year.

This Harvard-Brown game is expected to be the tipoff on the real strength of both elevens, and it should give some indication as to their relative strength.

Although this fray holds the spotlight other New England games attracting attention tomorrow are Yale-Pennsylvania, Boston University-Tufts, Catholic U.-Holy Cross, Bates-New Hampshire, Maine-Dartmouth and Northeastern-Rhode Island State.

Coming back to Harvard-Brown game this fray should be a very evenly fought affair. The Bruins have a strong, heavy and veteran line which should outcharge and outplay the Crimson forward wall.

The Crimson backfield, however, has the edge over the Bruins except for fullback where Captain E. Karaban heads away for the McLaughry men.

If Eddie Casey's charges can get a running attack working against this Brown line, then Harvard looms as a real eleven. Personally I believe Harvard's real hope lies in its aerial attack. Brown's secondary defense is inexperienced and weak on pass defense.

Because of Brown's superior line, I look for a Bruin victory tomorrow, unless Harvard unleashes an unexpectedly strong passing offense. Since I am expected to commit myself definitely, I'll say Brown by a touchdown.

GREEN IN A WALK

Yale gets its second real test tomorrow, down at the Bowl, when it plays host to Pennsylvania. After the Red and Blue's poor showing against Ursinus last Saturday, the outlook for the Elis is fairly bright. The new Pond regime should register its first victory by two touchdowns tomorrow.

It looks as though Catholic University lacks the needed power and we must, therefore, list the Southern school as Victim No. 4 for Holy Cross. The visitors should give the Crusaders a fairly good tussle but the final whistle should see Eddie Anderson's boys ahead by three touchdowns.

A local rivalry that is attracting much attention around Boston is the Boston University-Tufts game. The Terriers have not defeated Tufts since 1926 and will enter tomorrow's game on the short end. Lew Manley has eight regulars back from his great 1933 team and he expects a victory tomorrow.

My gang is also out to win tomorrow. There is not a boy on my squad who has ever played on a team that has defeated the Jumbos, and they intend to do so tomorrow. (I wish I could be as optimistic). As for picking the winner—I renege. I'm calling it a toss-up.

Reports from Hanover have it that Red Blair is secretly developing a baffling passing attack and a great assortment of running plays. His Dartmouth team has shown little yet, and the Green is not expected to open up tomorrow against the University of Maine.

The Orono school will be a little stiffer than Vermont or Norwich, but Dartmouth can still show a four touchdown superiority, I'd desire.

The Rhode Island State-Northeastern game should be a bitterly fought affair. These two institutions are great rivals in basketball and baseball, but this is their first meeting in football.

All McCoy has been pointing for this game since football was inaugurated at N. U. last fall.

Vare-Quier to Meet for Title

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former five-time winner of the National Women's Golf championship, and Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., star, today reached the finals of the 22nd annual competition for the Berthellyn cup.

Mrs. Vare, who is seeking to win the cup for the fourth time, eliminated the defending trophy holder, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former national champion, 3 and 2, while Miss Quier downed the lone western survivor, Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., by an identical score.

Newton Proves Easy for Everett, 21-4

Everett Stadium, Everett, Oct. 12—Coach Dinny Gildea's undefeated Everett High School team chalked up another win here today when it defeated Newton, 21 to 4. Everett showed their strength during the first two periods, but were completely outplayed during the second half and were forced to kick from behind their own goal line three times during the third period.

Sammy Gentile, stellar kicker of the Everett backfield, was injured in the third period and his absence was an asset to the Newton aggregation.

This is the first time this season that Everett has been scored on and puts them out of the unscored upon class.

FIRST PERIOD

Everett won the toss and received the kickoff on his own 28-yard line and ran it back to his 40 where he was tackled by Castoldi of Newton.

After two rushes, a first down was made by Gentile on a wide end run, getting 25 yards on the rush. Everett was penalized five yards for offside. On the next play Conley brought the ball to the two-yard line on an end run of 12 yards. On the next play Gentile went through center for the first score. Bellefatto missed the point on a rush.

Gentile kicked off to Savignano who caught the ball in back of the goal and ran it out to his own five-yard line. A bad pass by center was downed in back of goal line by Piscione. Everett offside for the second touchdown. Gentile missed kick for point.

Gentile kicked off to Newton. The ball went over the goal line and Newton took it on its own 20-yard line but was forced to kick. Underwood dropped back and tossed a pass that was intercepted by Stewart, Newton center, but was stopped in his tracks by Piscione, Everett end. After two unsuccessful attempts to rush Newton was forced to kick. Gentile on reverse play ran 30 yards, brought ball to own 27-yard line. On next play Davis took ball to Newton's six-yard line. Gentile went over for the third score standing up. Gentile was called back for Everett offside and Everett lost the ball on downs. Savignano of Newton attempted punt and it was blocked by Freeman for an Everett safety and two more points. The period then ended.

Score first period — Everett 14, Newton 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Opderbecke went in for Bellefatto, Conley for Davis and Gramstorff for Underwood for Everett. Newton sent in Bosworth for Treannie and Conley for Myers.

After an exchange of punts Everett got the ball on Newton's 16-yard line, making a first down on Newton's two-yard line. Everett lost the ball on downs. Savignano punted to his own 33-yard line. On three reverse plays, Gentile and Conley went over for the third score.

Everett was penalized at try for point and the ball was brought back to 20-yard line where Gentile dropped kicked the extra point standing on the Newton 30-yard line.

Score—Second period, Everett 7, Newton 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Everett kicked off to Savignano who was downed on his own 18-yard line. After an exchange of kicks Newton received the ball on Everett's 20 yard line. After two spinners with Savignano and Treannie doing the carrying, the ball was brought to Everett's one-yard line where Everett held Newton on downs. Underwood standing behind his goal line kicked out to his own 20 yard line. Newton lost the ball again on downs after two forward passes were knocked down.

Everett was penalized for offside on the next play. Freeman, the Everett center, snapped the ball back but was fumbled and downed by Piscione. On an attempt to kick out of danger Underwood's punt was carried in back of his own goal line for an automatic safety, the first points registered against Everett.

The ball was brought out to the 20-yard line where Underwood punted to Moore. Savignano returned to kick and it rolled over Everett's goal line and Underwood fell on the ball for another safety.

Gentile was put back into the game. On the first play Gentile hurt his leg and was carried from the field. He was replaced by Piscione. The period ended with the ball on Everett's 34-yard line.

Score—Everett 21, Newton 4.

Score third period, Everett 0, Newton 4.

Score end third period, Everett 21, Newton 4.

FOURTH PERIOD

After an exchange of kicks a lateral, O'Connell to McLeod brought the ball to Everett's 28-yard line where it was lost on downs.

Underwood attempted to kick but it was short and Newton down the ball on Everett's 24-yard line. Newton made desperate attempts with passes. The game ended with the ball on Everett's 45-yard line.

Final score: Everett 21, Newton 4.

FANS RIOT AS MEDFORD TIES SOMERVILLE

Dilboy Field, Somerville, Oct. 12—Marked by a fist fight between the players which for a time assumed riot proportions with a crowd of 10,000 swarming on the field, the Medford-Somerville football eleven struggled to a scoreless tie here this afternoon.

In their 21 years of grid meetings Somerville has failed to win a game from Medford.

The fight came at the end of the half with Ed Burns, Medford guard, and Frank Zammarchi, Somerville quarterback, the participants. Other players took up the cudgels of their mates and the hilarity spread to the spectators who broke through the ropes and swarmed over the field.

Play was halted fully twenty minutes before the play could be resumed. Then the combatants shook hands and continued their grid duel. Another outburst came in the final period with the spectators attempting to run over the field, but after only a brief halt the game continued to its scoreless conclusion.

Milton Rides Over Weymouth, 12-0

Scoring all their points in the third period Milton High rode to a 12-to-0 victory over Weymouth at the Milton Athletic Field today.

There was no scoring in the first half. O'Leary fell on the ball behind the goal line for the first score of the game. Nelson carried over from the one-yard line for a touchdown after a sustained march put Milton in the scoring position just as the third period ended. Neither team was able to score in the final quarter.

St. Bernard's Held to Tie by Ware

Fitchburg, Oct. 12—St. Bernard's battled Ware High to a scoreless tie here today. The locals had two chances to score. In the second they were on Ware's one-yard line only to lose the ball on downs to the visitors. In the final stanza St. Bernard's were deep in Ware's territory only to falter in the shadow of the goal post.

Grand Acre, Lynn Owned Horse, Wins Third Race

By Dave Egan

Narragansett Park, Oct. 12.—On this day in 1492 Christopher Columbus discovered America and eventually [illegible] Roger Williams to found Rhode Island or whatever he did to Rhode Island.

And it was a good thing that Columbus did discover America and Williams founded Rhode Island, for otherwise 2,000 men and women would not have been able to come to Narragansett Park and [illegible] Janey Lee.

Janey Lee was a two-year-old [illegible] she had never won [illegible] this year, here first in com[illegible] what owner and trainer R. W. Co[illegible] did for her.

PAID $72.50

Not [illegible] ticket [illegible] which was worth $137.

There were two gray horses in the second race and she was the one the Colonel thought he was [illegible] nothing except gray horses. F. A. Carreud's Stealthy Step, a gray filly, was not a bit stealthy as she hustled out front at the start, with Lillian C. White's Merovech second and the favorite, Brown Wisdom third.

Then everything became all confused because it looked as if all the horses were trying to win at one time.

That was silly, as the good Colonel knows, so finally L. E. Egle's Salisbury nagged the judges at the finish first. That's a pun. And the Colonel also has renamed that race from claiming to Salisbury stakes-ute.

LYNN HORSE WINS

Maybe it's the holiday air and the general atmosphere of merrymaking, but the colonel is right in the mood for all sorts of things, such as saying that J. J. Kelly's Grand Acre proved a grand acher to those who played the favorite, R. N. Kane's Pass in the third race.

Kelly is a gentleman from Lynn and he owns various horses, but Grand Acre is a pet.

Grand Acre paid $14.20 and that was just too wonderful for words. The feelings of those who played Pass were not fit for words—or the right kind of words.

Time and Experience!

This marvelous mellowness which distinguishes this famous American whiskey is due not merely to the time spent ageing in charred oak barrels. The art of making fine whiskey is not as simple as all that. Whiskey making is an art demanding years of experience . . . an art that cannot be learned in a hurry.

In these days, 50 whole years of pre-prohibition experience are a priceless asset to a whiskey distiller . . . an asset of Golden Wedding distillers that plays no mean part in producing the rich, smooth quality you identify with this delicious brand.

Kibitzer Wilson's Best Bet at Narragansett Saturday

$5000 added Weybosset Handicap here tomorrow afternoon.

Under the heavy impost of 122 pounds, the three-year-old son of Time Maker and Surplice will be giving each and every one of his opponents large chunks of weight on the scale. However, his recent performances have been little short of sensational.

Kibitzer, a winner of three straight races, looms all over the speed and class of the one and one-sixteenth miles of the seventh race. He will be encountering little more than he drubbed in that last effort.

IMA GREENOCK, CHARLIE DAWN, TEETER TOTTER

FIRST RACE—Claiming, two-year-olds, $1000, six furlongs:

1	Ima Greenock	109	Corbett	5-2
1	Charlie Dawn	x111	Sorenson	5-2
2	Teeter Totter	112	Allen	4-1
7	Hardatit	x1[illegible]6	Peters	4-1
[illegible]	Up to Date	x1[illegible]8	Maschek	4-1
6	[illegible]	113	Robertson	8-1
2	[illegible]	x1[illegible]8	Lynch	8-1
4	Lady Flondes	[illegible]	Watson	12-1

CHARLIE DAWN just failed to get up and drub New Flag a few days back. TEETER TOTTER, a scheduled starter today, should save the short end if sent right back.

LAMPORTE, LIBERTY OAK, AYMOND

SECOND RACE—Claiming, three-year-olds and up, purse $1000, six furlongs:

12	Lamporte	1[illegible]	Allen	4-1
1	aLiberty Oak	109	Sorenson	5-2
11	Aymond	x108	C. Watson	4-1
6	Paddock	x108	Pikor	6-1
6	Fran. Prince	113	Robertson	6-1
5	Teenie D.	110	Westrope	6-1
10	Sunny Sadie	x101	Maschek	6-1
4	Musing	x105	Lynch	8-1
2	Relativity	x101	Watson	15-1
7	Panbura	106	Corbett	15-1
12	Aaske	1[illegible]	Yowell	5-2
8	Longtale	113	No boy	20-1
3	Hero Olga	108	Haines	20-1

LAMPORT, a bullet away from the barrier, has drawn an outside post position and should escape early interference. That last effort was in the nature of a tightner and should not be taken too seriously. LIBERTY OAK finished in front of the top one in that effort, but I doubt if he will be able to duplicate the feat in this affair. AYMOND, freshened up slightly since her successful Canadian campaign, may go well.

FEUDEL LORD, BING CROSBY, FAST MOVE

THIRD RACE—Claiming, three-year-olds and up, $1000, six furlongs:

3	Feudal Lord	118	Watson	5-2
5	Bing Crosby	114	Tipton	5-2
2	Fast Move	111	Allen	6-1
4	Old Reb	112	Luther	4-1
7	Moana Keana	x110	Lynch	6-1
6	Golden Vein	111	Haines	8-1
8	Blue Emperor	x113	Roberts	15-1
1	War Plane	115	Robertson	15-1

FEUDEL LORD is clearly the class of this event. Just a question of his racing condition. George Alexandria is better than a green hand with a thoroughbred, so we have every reason to believe that he is good and fit. Three panels in .37 was the only move caught by the clockers. BING CROSBY, a frequent winner at Detroit has had several weeks to become acclimated and a good effort may be expected. FAST MOVE, a sluggish beginner, should be along in time to save the remainder of the spoils.

BLACK GIFT, HAPPY HELEN, BIT O'SHADE

FOURTH RACE—Allowance, three-year-olds, $1200, six furlongs:

3	Black Gift	112	Garner	3-1
1	Happy Helen	112	Critchfield	4-1
4	Bit O Shade	109	Tipton	4-1
3	Albuquerque	112	Corbett	4-1
5	Dokas	115	Westrope	6-1
6	Dunce	108	Allen	15-1

BLACK GIFT, a successful campaigner in the Brookmeade Stable, looks like a standout in an affair of this kind. Last out the son of Neddie ran a whale of a race to finish fifth in the Chesapeake Stakes. HAPPY HELEN is back on the scene of her best races. That last effort, a third behind Fraidy Cat and Blackbirder in the endurance handicap, showed that she is once more on the fast side. BIT O SHADE drubbed several fields of high class juveniles on New York tracks.

TIME SUPPLY, INDIAN RUNNER, PSYCHIC BID

FIFTH RACE—Weybosset Handicap all ages, $5000 added, six furlongs:

15	Time Supply	122	Luther	5-2
9	Indian Runner	119	[illegible]	6-1
6	Psychic Bid	1[illegible]4	Gardner	4-1
7	Okapi	1[illegible]2	[illegible]	4-1
2	Uppermost	[illegible]	Humphries	10-1
8	All Forlorn	105	Sorenson	15-1
12	Trumpery	109	Robertson	15-1
10	Patchpocket	108	Tipton	6-1
19	Quel Jeu	105	Winters	20-1
18	Slapdash	108	Saunders	20-1
5	Chinese Emp.	104	Westrope	20-1
4	Teralice	112	Maschek	20-1
15	Isaiah	112	Schaefer	20-1
3	Advising Anna	109	Watson	20-1
11	Black Hand	100	Corbett	20-1
16	My Dandy	111	Lynch	20-1
17	Bambousa	106	Allen	20-1
1	Universe	107	Peters	20-1
			Haines	20-1

TIME SUPPLY cannot afford to make any mistake as the field in this affair is just about the best that ever paraded postward over a New England track. INDIAN RUNNER, a victor in number of western stakes, shapes up as the most formidible of the contenders. According to the work tab, the son of Disc was never better. PSYCHIC BID is dropping 21 pounds off his last race and is entitled to better than an outside chance.

SCOTCH SOLDIER, BALANCER, LADY MARNOCK

SIXTH RACE—Claiming, three-year-olds and up, $1000, one mile and one-sixteenth:

8	Scotch Soldier	x106	Peters	2-1
3	Balancer	x104	Sorenson	3-1
4	Lady Marnock	111	Watson	6-1
5	Santerno	x109	Robertson	6-1
1	Nancy C.	103	Haines	8-1
9	Pompohone	x102	Lynch	8-1
2	Tiswield	x106	Maschek	15-1
6	Gracias	x106	Pikor	20-1
7	Dark Ayr	x106	O. Watson	20-1

SCOTCH SOLDIER, an erratic post actor, looks as good as anything else in this heat. But for being made too much of he would have drubbed Boom's Pal and Lofty Lady in that last race. BALANCER, a slow beginner, will be running over top of horses during the late stages. Mayhap that he will be along in time to snare the place. LADY MARNOCK showed a world of speed before stopping in her debut.

KIBITZER, OLD JUDGE, WAYLAYER

SEVENTH RACE—Claiming, three-year-olds and up, $1000, one mile and one-sixteenth:

5	Kibitzer	x112	Fela	8-5
3	Old Judge	x112	Sorenson	4-1
4	Waylayer	x112	Peters	8-3
1	Pompeon	1[illegible]	Tipton	4-1
2	Four Spot	x107	Roberts	6-1
1	Portcodine	x103	Chanove	10-1

KIBITZER will have OLD JUDGE to drub in this affair. The latter is right at the top of his form and moves up in the mud. WAYLAYER returned to form last out to drub Boom's pal and that sort.

BLACKMAIL, RADIATOR, McCRACKEN

EIGHTH RACE—$1000, maidens, all ages, one mile:

1	Blackmail	102	Helm	8-5
2	Radiator	102	Greer	3-1
3	McCracken	103	Lynch	4-1
6	Transparent	102	Peters	4-1
5	Employment	112	Tipton	6-1
6	Be Off	112	Knezeal	20-1
7	Stepping In	115	Burke	25-1
8	Sweet Beauty	112	Haines	30-1

BLACKMAIL, a well bred son of Whichcone and the Blonde, has been especially prepped for an affair of this sort. Before shipping from Jamaica he whirled a mile in 1:43 handily. His third to JANEY LEE and Radiator attests to his fitness. RADIATOR, a fleet but faint hearted youngster, may hand on long enough to save the place. McCRACKEN should go well.

FORDHAM WILL BEAT EAGLES, SAYS LITTLE

minutes of play. Both teams lost last Saturday. Penn is a new, inexperienced eleven while Yale is hardly acclimated to its new coaching staff.

Harvard-Brown is a game of the same nature. Cornell can win from Syracuse if it is fortunate enough to get a break in the luck at the outset.

Everything points to the fact that Temple is going to have an exceptionally fine season. Indiana may be troublesome but can hardly hope to win as Temple has too much in the way of reserves.

Princeton, Dartmouth and Navy will not have any trouble tomorrow while Army may experience a little difficulty in getting by Drake.

Michigan's performance was disappointing to its followers. It is the first game that the Wolverines have lost in several years. You will find that Michigan will be a much better team after its experience of last Saturday.

Northwestern is going to experience difficulty in its game with Stanford. It has been forced to travel most of the week and naturally had to forego the advantages of practice which were needed at this time of the year.

Stanford will be practically a veteran team, and I feel also that it had the advantage of an extra month's practice in preparing for the game last New Year's day.

Iowa seems to loom as one of the real threats of the conference. Nebraska can hardly hope to win due to inexperience. From all reports when Iowa and Minnesota meet, the conference championship probably will be decided.

Brown Has Edge, Says Hardwick

slightly favoring the Bear. She has the advantage of a more experienced squad, a longer period of training and an additional game under its belt. It appears to hold a decided edge in the line, and it is in the line that most games are won or lost.

Harvard, in its only game this year, showed intermittent bursts of power but left its followers with the distinct feeling that a multitude of loose ends need attention.

One paramount need is to improve its kicking game, which Saturday last was lamentably inadequate.

The rapid development of the forward pass has tended to minimize the use of the punt, but it is still of vital importance. It is a department of the game no team can afford to neglect.

First and foremost the kicker must receive proper protection in getting his kick away. This protection Harvard did not give Saturday, as is clearly evidenced by the picture on Page 18.

A blocked punt comes in the category of "criminal non-support." It has always been considered an unforgivable sin—a sufficient cause for "sackcloth and ashes." The best families just do not countenance it.

Yet Harvard had three punts blocked Saturday—three punts blocked in one game—and blocked by a team of a supposedly weaker stratum.

Bates' forwards were sifting through with astonishing ease. It was not as though the Crimson linemen in their eagerness to cover the kicks willfully neglected to hold a solid protecting front, since certainly down the field they were conspicuous by their absence.

Karaban and Beatty Dangerous Backs

The punts, moreover, lacked height with the result that the Bates punt catcher was allowed to run them back for considerable distances.

After all is said and done the value of a punt is not its length but the net gain the kick produces.

Therefore sufficient height to enable proper coverage is of utmost importance. Saturday Harvard's punts lacked that sufficient height.

Captain Bill Karaban of Brown, besides being a splendid and consistent punter, is a hard-running and powerful back. Leland Beatty, a sophomore, shows unusual promise. Behind Brown's stalwart line either of these backs are dangerous.

And don't forget to concentrate for a few plays on Mal Ball at end—there's a constant, brilliant worker. I would be willing to bet the Public Garden against an old safety-razor blade that he loves to play.

Yes, tomorrow has all the earmarks of a nervous afternoon.

All ye New Englanders who have been following this week's "About Faces" series, as appearing daily in the Boston Evening American, will see the names of the lucky cash award winners in tomorrow's paper. Watch for it. Your name might be among the fortunate prize winners.

In today's "About Faces" drawing you will recognize some of Hollywood's outstanding stars. They are all appearing at the Metropolitan Theater beginning today where the screen offers "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and the stage offers a brilliant array of 40 stars in "Round Boston Town."

Beneath the drawing of each celebrity you will find a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of these stars. Fill in these blocks, correctly, using the letter as a clue and mail in your entire week's solutions to The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

For the most original and most correct solutions the Boston Evening American will offer: First prize, $5.00; second prize, $3.00; third prize, $2.00, and 15 prizes of a brand new dollar bill, each.

Eileen Gillespie Takes Up Residence Near Astors

Eileen Gillespie arrived in Newport today to take up autumn residence as a neighbor of her best girl friend and her former fiance, now man and wife.

While in Newport she will live four doors from John Jacob Astor 3d and his bride, the former "Tucky" French of Dedham. All will be forgiven and forgotten, it is understood, provided Jack Astor does not go talking out of turn.

Miss Gillespie sailed for Europe o[illegible] the man she was to have married married her best friend and she returned today to find them in a domicile a short distance from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Watts Sherman.

FOUND NO NEW LOVE

Coincidental with her arrival in New York aboard the Rex, the New York Evening Journal published an interview with an unidentified spokesman for the Gillespie family who said Eileen found no new heart interest during her visit abroad, and that he is not sure she is not still in love with Astor.

The Journal said:

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie already have [illegible] and their daughter Eileen [illegible] have too, that [illegible] some d[illegible] on this [illegible] even though the scion of the original fur trader has married her best friend.

"Do you think Eileen is still in love with Astor?" the reporter asked.

"I don't know," the spokesman said. "You can't read a girl's mind. I'm not sure. You know she has been terribly hurt.

"How does Eileen feel about 'Tucky' Astor?"

"They'll always remain friends."

"But all of the Gillespies and their friends and relatives want a quietus on the whole affair. It all depends on Astor."

DIDN'T WANT MONEY

The spokesman gave some of his views on marriage and money—especially that combination as affected the romance of Jack and Eileen.

"Eileen did not want Jack Astor's money," he said. "Money, as such, never entered her head. She was dazzled only by the operation of his money, the way he talked about it, his dazzling promises of cars, a million and a half dollars, a yacht, mansions, world tours. It is all too tragic.

"VIOLENT TEMPER"

"The Gillespies' own concern over Astor's future conduct as regards them prompts me to talk this way. They are concerned over his way of talking out of turn, of stirring things up, of letting his violent temper and lack of control get the better of him.

"The Gillespies want all of this to end. They were plunged helplessly into this sensational mess and, having been goaded just so far, had to go to limits they found most distasteful, if necessary.

"What Jack Astor really said to Eileen that day in the Savoy is unprintable. If said to a man, he would have been knocked down in a flash.

SHOWED RESTRAINT

"A father would have had perfect justification in going to any extreme, but Mr. Gillespie, showing great restraint, thought first of his daughter and did nothing drastic.

"Now the Gillespie family will visit Newport. Phyllis and Eileen to see their grandmother, Mrs. Watts Sherman and Mrs. Gillespie to see her mother.

"Eileen will lead the life in New York this season of a young girl of 18 who has joie vivre and a natural desire to be happy in the society of her young friends.

"Recent events as reported in the press have demonstrated the wisdom of the cancellation. Let there be no more about it."

SPEER SLAYING STORIES VARY

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Northfield, Oct. 12—Several discrepancies have been discovered in statements given police probing the murder of Rev. Elliott Speer, Mount Hermon school principal, by two important witnesses in the case, it was learned today.

These discrepancies were revealed to the police late this afternoon when every bit of interrogation and answers were reread by stenographers in the temporary state police headquarters set up in the garage formerly used by the slain principal.

State detectives said their discovery would lead to requestioning of the two men.

The actual work of reopening a steam line trench running across the school campus near the home of the slain principal in hope of finding the 12 gage shot gun used as the murder weapon was begun this afternoon.

VICKS MEDICATED COUGH DROP

"Since I've used Crisco my husband enjoys pie—without any discomfort," writes Mrs. Fagan. (CRISCO is the digestible shortening)

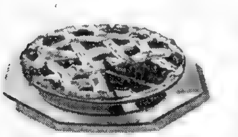
Here's a letter from Mrs. Anna P. Fagan. She writes: "Crisco solved one of my greatest problems—making pie for my husband. Pastries and fried foods never agreed with him. But one day, years ago, the sweetest girl came demonstrating Crisco. She impressed me so that I decided to make pie for dinner with CRISCO.

"I remember it was an apple pie, dandy to look at—but how would it react on my husband? I gave him a dainty little piece, while the rest of us enjoyed generous ones. He said, 'It sure tasted good, but I'm wondering what it'll do to me!' I didn't hear anything more until next A. M. when he said, 'Say, Ann, is there any pie left? Save me a piece!' Since then my husband has been enjoying his pie—or rather my Crisco pies—without any discomfort."

MRS. FAGAN'S STORY IN PICTURES

See, Mrs. Fagan, how light and creamy it is. CRISCO is the creamy, digestible fat.
I'm going to try it for an apple pie. If it agrees with my husband, I'll be tickled.
That sweet CRISCO girl said the pastry would be digestible, Arthur!
It sure tastes good, but I'm wondering what it'll do to me.
NEXT MORNING
Say, Ann, is there any of that pie left? Save me a piece for tonight!
Arthur! That's wonderful. That means that CRISCO pie crust is digestible!
CRISCO



CHERRY-RIPE PIE
It's made with digestible pastry, so don't be afraid to gorge!

1 can (2 cups) pitted red cherries
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon flour

Turn cherries, juice and all, into a saucepan. Add sugar and heat thoroughly. Remove from stove. Drain off excess juice. Put cherries into Crisco pastry-lined pie pan. Sprinkle with lemon juice and flour. Add top crust of digestible Crisco pastry, plain or in strips arranged in lattice fashion. Press down edges with fork. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) until brown (about 25 minutes).

DIGESTIBLE CRISCO PASTRY
(Master Recipe)
(Use this recipe to make all your favorite pies digestible!)

DOUBLE-CRUST: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup Crisco, 6 to 8 tablespoons water.

SINGLE CRUST: 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup Crisco, 4 to 6 tablespoons water.

Crumbly Crisco Crust—Sift flour and salt. Do not chill Crisco, the light digestible shortening. Cut in Crisco finely. Add just enough cold water to hold mixture together.

Flaky Crisco Crust—Sift flour and salt. Chill Crisco, the sweet digestible shortening. Cut in Crisco coarsely. Add ice-cold water, just enough to hold mixture together.

From here on, the method is the same: Roll pastry ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured board. For baked shell, cover inverted pie-plate. Prick bottom and sides. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 15 minutes. For two-crust pie, bake 10 minutes in hot oven (450°F.) then reduce to moderate (350°F.). Bake until filling is done.

Leslie Howard Assigned Role of Beau Brummel in Coming Hal Wallis Picture

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 12—Leslie Howard as Beau Brummel in Clyde Fitch's play! How do you like [illegible]? Well, you see, it's this way. Hal Wallis isn't going to let any other company do "Beau Brummel" while he [illegible]. Not only do Warners own the Clyde Fitch play, but they spent too much on research when they [illegible] with John Barrymore as the dashing blade of the 18th century.

So Romance P[illegible] plenty of hot [illegible] ward Small keeps [illegible] put Robert Donat into his own "Beau Brummel" version Warners have already assigned Mary McCall Jr. to the adaptation of the Fitch play.

Scully as Film Sales Head

Gaumont Pictures, leading film producers of Great Britain, has appointed Mr. John Scully sales head for the distribution of their product in New England.

Mr. Scully, well known in eastern film circles, has already completed plans for the release of the Gaumont films in leading New England cities.

Planned for early release is "Chu Chin Chow," starring Anna May Wong, and shortly thereafter New England theatergoers will see Gaumont productions starring George Arliss, Ronald Colman and Evelyn Laye.

Mr. [illegible] and Mr. Myron S[illegible] will be associated with Mr. Scully in the management of the Gaumont New England exchange.

Fascist Band at Garden

The National Fascist Military Band, acclaimed as one of the finest in Europe and the favorites of Premier Benito Mussolini, will give concerts in Boston at the Boston Garden on Saturday and Sunday evening.

From the small town of Chieti in the Abruzzi hills the fame of this aggregation of musicians spread until it won first prize in Italy's national band contest, a project of Il Duce. Scoring signal success on a tour throughout Europe, the Militia Band first came to this country for an appearance at the Century of Progress in Chicago and was recently heard before an enthusiastic audience at Carnegie Hall in New York.

Selections from the operas of Verdi, Puccini, Donizetti, Giordano and other great Italian masters are included on their programs as well as works of Wagner, Brahms, Beethoven, Mozart, Bizet and other noted composer

Damon Runyon's 'Lemon Drop Kid' Is Feature at Fenway and Paramount

By JOYCE DANA

Two of the most noted authors of the day, whose works present vivid contrasts, but whose public is large and faithful, are represented on the new screen programs at both the Paramount and Fenway.

Willa Cather's prize winning novel, "A Lost Lady," starring Barbara Stanwyck, takes its place with "The Lemon Drop Kid," another of the prodigious Mr. Damon Runyon's stories for which Hollywood studios are happily and constantly outbidding each other.

Barbara Stanwyck

"The Lemon Drop Kid" will undoubtedly join "Little Miss Marker" and "Lady for a Day," others of Runyon's screen successes, as just about the best there is in screen entertainment. It has to begin with the humor and pathos of real people; that magic little glimpse into the souls beneath even the hardest of hard-boiled exteriors, and that perfect [illegible] touch that makes you realize after it's all over that underneath its gay [illegible], its wisecracks and its [illegible] vernacular there are [illegible] have engaged [illegible] greater philosophers than Mr. Runyon, who is no mean philosopher himself.

Lee [illegible] is splendid as the bad [illegible] who at last finds love more [illegible] than horses, and Helen Mack gives an appealing performance as one girl who's a distinct success at reforming a man. Some great lines and a good characterization are given by William Frawley as the Professor, and by Minna Gombell as his ever loving wife. Baby Le Roy will make you laugh and cry, and the whole cast, excellently directed by Marshall Neilan, lives up to the Runyon story. They can't do more.

As Miss Cather's "A Lost Lady" reaches the screen she is surrounded by four of Hollywood's handsomest men, wears a succession of smart costumes and makes the heroine a sincere and [illegible] who fights [illegible].

[illegible] of [illegible] Marian [illegible] with a fine man many years her senior. [illegible] Cupid [illegible]. When the other man shows up this time straight from the skies by way of airplane Marian tells her husband the bitter truth. At strong odds with the novel, the two eventually find happiness together.

It is pleasant to see Miss Stanwyck [illegible] than the drab [illegible] she is at her best with a supporting cast that includes Ricardo Cortez as the [illegible] Romeo and Frank Morgan as the patient and understanding [illegible] Lyle Talbot [illegible] and [illegible].

Tremont Program

On the screen at the Tremont today and running through Sunday is "Only Yesterday," with Margaret Sullavan as the star, and Will Rogers and Evelyn Venable in "David Harum," screen version of one of America's most famous classics.

Added features include a Betty Boop cartoon, the current newsreel and other short screen subjects.

Given in Marriage

—By Adele Garrison—

Noel Leaves the Farmhouse to Get Copies of the "Love Poems" He Wrote to Avis

CHAPTER 164

AT THE end of the five minutes I had given Mary and Noel for their last good night as betrothed lovers, I concluded that Bob and Ronald abetted by the rest of our young people, were doing a very good job indeed in keeping Avis Arlen so occupied that she had no opportunity to hunt up Noel. At any rate, I had seen nothing of her, and when I had knocked upon my study door according to my pact, and then had given the lovers two more minutes for a final farewell, I congratulated myself that the danger of the girl gaining an interview alone with Noel was almost over

I guessed that she realized, as I did, the futility of such an attempt upon the following day, when the house would be filled with guests and hubbub. Whatever she attempted would have to be staged during the hours remaining of the night, and it was with a feeling of thankfulness that I went with Mary to the side door of the veranda and waved goodby to Noel, as he strode down the path to the road which would take him to The Larches for the night.

"IF SOMETHING SHOULD HAPPEN"

"I wonder," Mary said thoughtfully, as we came back into the hall again.

"What, darling?" I asked as she paused and her eyes met mine wistfully.

"Whether anything could possibly happen before tomorrow," she said. "Oh, I know it's silly; but I'm so happy, Aunt Madge; too happy!"

"Then enjoy your happiness," I told her, "and don't be captious. At that, you're probably the trillionth bride to feel that way, so we'll pardon you this time. But the next time you get married, don't let me hear an anxious word out of you."

She laughed at my banal jest, and then swept me into a bear hug.

"Never an aunt like you!" she said affectionately, and my heart warmed to her praise.

"Anything you want me to do now?" she queried.

"Nothing save get your beauty sleep," I told her, "and for that reason I'm going to change your sleeping quarters. If you stay in that room with Carolyn and Marion, you will be too tired to sleep, after listening to their chatter."

"Oh, Aunty Madge, am I coming in with you?" she caroled gladly. "I'd love to spend my last night at home with you."

"And I'd love nothing better than to have you," I rejoined, "but you know how Avis is acting about that bridesmaid's gown, so I'm taking no chances upon her wandering around the house by herself after the rest of us have gone to bed."

"Do you mean you've taken her in your room?" she said disappointedly. "Oh, how horrid—for you!"

"I suspect it's rather horrid for Avis," I said, with a malicious little grin, "but I can't pump up any sympathy for her. But I am sorry, dearest, not to have you with me."

"It can't be helped, so we'll have to stand it," she said resignedly. "Where am I to snooze?"

"In Katherine's sitting room," I said. "She has wheeled one of the single beds in her bedroom into the sitting room, and you can be quiet there as long as you like in the morning. It's a beautifully airy room, too, and nobody ever disturbs the nursery, you know."

"I can think of nothing more comfortable," she said, "but I don't want to sleep late tomorrow. It's my last day of girlhood, and I'm going to make the most of it. Noel and I are going to visit all our special haunts, and say goodby to them until we come back. Aren't we silly?"

"Yes, gloriously so," I told her, smiling. "Ready to go upstairs now? I'll see you settled in the nursery."

SAFE FROM AVIS ARLEN

She turned her keen, brilliant eyes upon me.

"Afraid the little wolf in sheep's clothing may be waiting around the corner to grab me?" she asked shrewdly. "I can assure you I feel perfectly able to cope with her, even to stage a hair pulling match."

We won't let it get that far," I answered her, with apparent carelessness, but I was disturbed, nevertheless, at her insight into the fact that my worry over her being disturbed by Avis Arlen transcended my anxiety over the possible destruction of the bridesmaid's gown at the hands of the girl who was so determined upon spoiling the harmony of the wedding.

"No I'll restrain myself nobly, she gibed as she kissed me goodnight at Katherine's door "But you'll agree with me that she does need her face scratched a bit, won't you?"

"Heartily," I told her, and went away down the corridor, feeling that one-third of my problem was solved. Avis would not be able to get at Mary during the night, nor had I any fear until the next day for the bridesmaid's gown, now locked securely in Helena Brixton's closet. But I knew that I must not relax my vigilance over Noel for a single instant until he had come and gone again.

Charm of Gardenias Tucked in Pretty Hair

THERE IS YOUTH and sophistication, there is storied glamour and fresh charm in wearing gardenias tucked in a shining swirl of hair. And the artificial gardenia, delicately made, is a favorite for coiffure wear. The problem has been, so far, to keep the flower securely fastened. Short hair is notorious for letting valuable clips and flowers slip away, as well as the garden variety of pins and combs. The gardenia cluster with its tiny bud is ingeniously fitted on a curved metal band that clasps itself lightly but firmly to the head. It may be worn several ways, but isn't it adorable as it is shown? If you would like to know which Boston shop has this gardenia bandeau, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cold Winds Can't Trespass

REAL HORSEHIDE makes a he-man, wind-breaking coat of which the young man will be intensely proud. It's a good length—enough for warmth and short enough so that active, energetic knees aren't hampered. And the pocket room! Even Huck Finn would admit that his jeans could hold no more. Bridge Contract Is Often Set by Ruff Refusal

By Josephine Culbertson

The average, or possibly I should say the mediocre bridge player will avidly grab whatever tricks he can as quickly as possible.

The careful defensive player, however will know that the play of the hand must be visualized as a whole and that one trick can and often should be sacrificed in the early play if this sacrifice brings hope of an eventually greater return. On today's hand, the East player deliberately refused to give his partner a ruff, realizing that if instead he shortened the declarer much more would be gained. Thus he not only shortened declarer but caused his partner to retain enough trumps so that declarer could not draw them and then run an established side suit.

Neither side vulnerable

♣ K J 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡	3 ◇
Pass	4 ◇	4 ♡	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South's four-heart bid, although slightly risky, was justifiable. After all, South had no way of telling that his partner had an absolute minimum bid, and the fact that the opponents crowded the bidding practically forced the South player to gamble on finding a heart fit.

West, because of his length in trumps, decided to open the strongest suit that he and his partner seemed to hold between them, and consequently laid down the diamond Ace. South trumped this lead and took the heart finesse, the Queen in dummy winning the trick. A club was led from dummy and East ducked, South's Jack winning. Another heart was led and won in the dummy with the Ace and on the second club lead from dummy East went up with his Ace.

At this point East knew for certain that his partner had no more clubs, but deliberately declined to give West a club ruff. The only hope for the defense at this time was in forcing South again. Due to West's very fine opening, the defense had already obtained the jump on the Declarer and East continued to force South by leading another diamond.

This play rendered the South player helpless to fulfill his contract. He could not afford to play out another trump as West would simply win and lead still another diamond, removing South's last heart. On this line of play of course the contract would be defeated several tricks. South had to play the hand safely for down one by leading out his King of clubs. West trumped and led another diamond, which the declarer trumped himself.

The dummy was now entered with the spade Ace and the club 10 led, West trumping again, this time with the heart King. Another diamond lead by the declarer was won by South's last trump and then an end play was still needed for South to avoid going down two. He led out the eight of spades and East won with the Jack, but the latter now had to lead away from his Queen into South's King-ten, giving the declarer the last two.

It is easily seen that had East had the lack of foresight to force his partner to ruff the third round of clubs, the declarer would have been in complete command of the situation. He would have been able to draw trumps, keep the Ace of spades as an entry into dummy and eventually get two spade discards on dummy's two long clubs, and thus the contract would have been fulfilled.

Tears That Soften Man's Heart Are Woman's Best Weapon of Extortion

By Sheilah Graham

SOME OF YOU will not need this advice. Some of you—and when I write you I am addressing the others—already know that the tear is mightier than the argument. Some of you in fact [illegible] over your men because some of you are smart enough to realize that tears are woman's best weapon of extortion.

T[illegible] the right way [illegible] most of the things [illegible] females who [illegible] nagging and [illegible] are the only dignified [illegible] for a woman [illegible] over again and [illegible] of tears with a capital T.

Weep, ladies, weep. Weep when you want a new dress. Weep when you want to go out and HE—the big brute—is determined to stay in. There is nothing like tears for flooding a man out of his home.

Weep when HE is cruel to you. [illegible] much more [illegible] than a verbal [illegible] and [illegible]—go on for sev[illegible]

WON FREEDOM

Say, there is a New York [illegible] over in France by the name of Fr[illegible] We[illegible] who must have read this column before I wrote it. She turned on her tear ducts when she was in an exceptional[illegible] spot. In fact she was a [illegible] and was just about to be sent to a French jail when she remembered the ancient male heart softner. She unloosed a torrent of tears and was saved. Not only was she saved, but the lad who was prosecuting her turned right round in his tracks and defended her!

From one who has seen the inside of a French jail—as a visitor, smartie, not as an inmate—I congratulate Freva on the good judgment that told her the time had arrived to cry.

I used to weep that way myself until the day I accidentally saw my face in a mirror. After what I saw I wasn't surprised that my tears hadn't done me much good up till then.

I studied the methods of female vamps and movie stars. I noticed that when they wept very little damage was done to their beauty.

PROFESSIONAL WEEPERS

They allowed their shoulders to heave up and down with a nice swaying movement, their lips crumple up in a way that make all decent minded men long to kiss them and their eyes grow large and luminous.

After that a large crystal tear appears in each eye. They swim in their optical playground just long enough to make the eyes look like wet stars and then, oh so gently, they splash over and run down the cheeks.

Another thing I have noticed about the professional weepers—they never allow their noses [illegible] red and she[illegible] not even after a weep and [illegible] four hours.

Here is the secret. Foundation cream. Always be sure to spread a good make of foundation cream on the nose and under the eyes before shedding tears. In fact you had better do it all the time. You never know when you will be in a difficult situation that may require tears to get you out.

I can cry very nicely now and my tears have been [illegible] in getting many of the things I want.

Pointed Yoke Bodice

By MARIAN MARTIN

There are no frills or ruffles to get in the way of your work, and [illegible] flattering lines in this pretty house frock. The bodice boasts a smartly pointed yoke at the neckline and a surplice closing, while the darts at the back of the frock give a trim effect yet supply comfortable roominess. Most women prefer short sleeves for convenience in whisking about the house but if you like long ones better, they, too, come with the pattern.

Pattern 9173 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36-inch fabric.

Superfluous Hair Bleach

Question: I have been shaving the hair from under my arms and I now find that it grows in darker and heavier. Can you tell me of a bleach that will lighten this growth?

How much epsom salts should be used in an epsom salt bath? How hot should the water be?

Medford S. T.

Answer. A good bleach is as follows: One-half teaspoon ammonia to 3 tablespoons peroxide. Mix a fresh solution every day.

You should use one pound of epsom salts in a bath. The water should be as hot as you can stand it. It is not necessary to take another cleansing bath.

VERTICAL UNION WINS BACKING OF LABOR

By Universal Service

San F[illegible] O[illegible] 12.—The [illegible] in the American Federation of Labor [illegible] over vertical or industrial unions as against craft organizations developed into a happy peace party here when a report from the resolutions committee presented a compromise recommendation satisfactory to leaders on both sides.

The report provides:

1—That the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is directed to issue charters for national or international unions in mass p[illegible] notably the au[illegible] c[illegible] and a[illegible]num p[illegible] s[illegible] d vertical unions.

Daughters of Venus -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

CHAPTER XXII

Another voice within, sane and bold and courageous, bade her follow his hopeful logic. It was like climbing a ladder with firm rungs.

In the first place, she wondered, was she acquainted with anybody who actually owned fifty thousand?

That lawyer from San Francisco—Terhune was his name—probably had that much, but he didn't look like a man who would part with it. There were several people in New York, and one in Kansas City who owned much more money than that, but she didn't know them well enough and, anyway, they were not the kind.

The Gott[illegible]

Juliet had under[illegible]mated Gottlieb. He was not merely a plumpish little business man with Gibraltar for a nose and a [illegible] nature that led him to [illegible] and almost as [illegible] repentance.

For two hours, while Juliet tried to explain why she was asking fifty thousand dollars, he pounced and ripped and slashed at every argument she brought forth.

"THEY NEED OXYGEN"

"My dear Miss Rankin, it boils down to this. They have a dying business and they need oxygen. As it stands now the Institute is a failure. The only hope of success is a gamble—the long chance that these new policies of yours will bring large profits in short order. No sane man would make a straight loan on a dying woman, a dwindling business and a plant plastered with mortgages."

They were sitting in the living room of the old-fashioned Gottlieb home with its heavy furniture, its substantial hardness that had weathered more than one kind of storm. Mrs. Gottlieb, lo[illegible] nearly a generation younger and happier than she had been in years, came in from the kitchen.

"Papa, we must ask Miss Rankin to stay for supper," [illegible] eagerly, a little dumpy woman with white tight skin around her throat and chin.

"Yes, yes, of course," Gottlieb answered, with a wave of his hand. "But don't interrupt now Mamma, please. We are talking business."

"Of course, you place everything in the worst possible light," she told him bravely. "It's easy to pick anything to pieces."

"How else can we arrive at a conclusion?" he demanded impatiently. "I have been arguing for your interest as much as my own. I don't mind telling you Miss Rankin that if there is one person on earth I'd like to do something for, you are the person. Mamma and I have reasons we can't ever forget to be grateful to you. But if I put money into this proposition it won't be on account of gratitude, which is quite different from business."

"I'm presenting it as a business deal and nothing more," Juliet reminded him.

INTERESTS THE SAME

"If I put in one penny, and take a [illegible], I will expect to take out [illegible]," Gottlieb went on. "But first I must talk to the bank that holds the mortgage. And naturally all of the books would have to be opened wide. It's not so simple as just writing out a check, is it?"

[illegible] however, G[illegible] came in person to the Institute [illegible] by a thin dry [illegible].

"M[illegible] Mr. Z[illegible] n, accountant," said Gottlieb. "He will be here several days on the books."

It was necessary to get O'Hara's p[illegible] but so elated was that gentleman at the prospect of succor that the mathematical Mr. Zinn had the impression that he was being carried around on a silken pillow.

"I've had the contracts drawn," he said authoritatively. "They probably are quite different from anything you expected, but you don't know much about business, do you?"

"Almost nothing," admitted Juliet joyously.

"Good. Now—I'll tell you frankly. I'm on your side and you're on my side. Our interests are like that." He clenched a plump fist to illustrate. "But you must believe in me and know that I'm not only your backer, but I'm your partner and your friend. Are you willing to stick with me on everything?"

He had, Juliet thought, the toughest mind she had ever encountered.

"Remember, I'm not asking you to betray anybody, or be disloyal to your friends here, but I will not go through with this deal unless I have your word that you will be guided by me instead of by them in every question."

Juliet took a deep breath and, for all she knew, risked everything.

"I couldn't be guided by you in everything, Mr. Gottlieb," she said, "because it is not my idea to be a puppet. I have intelligence of my own and I propose to use it. But I can promise this—you've come to my rescue, so to speak, and I'll place no loyalty ahead of you."

"That's good enough for me," he declared. "Now, I've seen the bank and they agree to extend the loan on condition I put money into the firm. That means we can have the fifty thousand available for expansion right now."

"Why, I think that's marvelous!" cried Juliet.

"These contracts," he tapped them with a stubby finger, "depend on how the accounts shape up. If the books are in even fair condition, I'm ready to act. But it can't be just a straight loan. It's a loan secured by the usual mortgages but as a bonus I'm taking 20 per cent of the profits from the date of signing. Also, I'm providing that all matters of policy and expenditures and receipts of income shall be under the full control of my representatives, who shall have absolute power to conduct the business. Do you know who that representative is going to be?"

"It means that exactly," returned Gottlieb calmly. "And you are going to be in full charge as my representative. Furthermore, I have here a contract between you and me which provides that my 20 per cent of the profits is divided equally between us, 10 per cent to you and 10 per cent to me. Of course, you'll get your regular salary—raise it if it needs raising. You'll be the boss."

Gottlieb bit a fresh cigar.

"They'll sign it all right," he said contentedly, "or inside of two weeks they'll be out in the street and their Institute turned into a warehouse."

At the door of Madame Hubert's hospital room O'Hara paused to take a deep sustaining breath like a diver just before he plunges.

He pulled up a chair and sat down, dreading the row she was bound to raise.

"These are the contracts for the fifty thousand," he said, cautiously. "And plenty tough the terms are, too. But we get the money."

"G[illegible]! But I knew we'd get it. They'll never be able to keep us down, O'Hara. You say the terms are very stiff? And how did the girl raise the money?"

"From Gottlieb."

GOOD WORK MR. ZWIEKE!

(Mancelona, Mich., Herald)

Luke Kunkosky, one-time proprietor of the shoe-doctor shop here, with his wife came up the last of the week to spend their vacation here. The farm of Mr. Kunkosky's father at Finn Lake, between here and Alden was visited by two blazes recently. One was when the island in the lake burned over. The timber is not injured, it is believed. The other was when lightning struck the house and set it on fire. John Zwieke who cares for the place, sat at a window and saw a bolt of lightning strike a cherry tree, then turned around just in time to see a streak of lightning come down the chimney, setting the place ablaze upstairs. Mr. Zwieke, who has but one leg, was not dazed by the bolt and was able to extinguish the flames by tearing out a partition and dashing in a pail of water and a pail of slop.

COLUMBUS DAY OBSERVANCE ON AIR WAVES TODAY

New York has discovered Columbus recently, an old statue of the famous explorer and the same will be dedicated in Gotham today, the ceremony being the basis of a broadcast to be wafted across the air from coast to coast. Facilities of WEEI will carry the program, beginning at 2:30 p. m.

In addition, the voice of Luis Calderon, Spanish Ambassador to the United States, is to hold forth during the same period. A eulogy on Columbus affords the timely theme of his message, which is scheduled to be delivered in Spanish and subsequently translated to English.

Jane Froman

Jane Froman, e popular and pretty songstress of radioland, occupies the spotlight tonight while a new network musical "mike" half-hour gets an airing. Al Goodman and his orchestra, Dwight Fiske, well known Manhattan night club entertainer and Earl Oxford, highly praised Park Avenue baritone, also take part in the thirty minutes, as slated hereabouts on the WBZ-WBZA channels.

Immediately following the above attraction, meaning at 9 o'clock, Phil Harris and his tune troupe take off into space (WBZ) with another football flavored fantasy. This time Phil salutes the universities of Pittsburgh and Southern California, on the eve of the two gridiron teams meeting for a collegiate pigskin tussle.

CALLING COLEMAN!

Louella Parsons, famous Hollywood film writer for the Boston Evening American, introduces none other than Ronald Colman to the air audience tonight. Miss Parsons presents Colman (WNAC) as the feature of the "Hollywood Hotel" offering that fills the 9:30 to 10:30 hour over Yankee Network and border to border stations. Ted Fio-Rito is the melody making head man, with Dick Powell, also of the pictures, as master of ceremonies.

Jessica Dragonette chooses "The Arcadians" operetta, as written by Monckton, with which to embellish her concert soloing efforts this evening (WEEI) on the stroke of 8 p. m. Rosario Bourdon's orchestra affords an appropriate semi-classic background.

SOUTHERN SPIRIT

Mildred Bailey, the gal known as "The Rockin Chair Lady" in radioland and listeningdom, contributes "Shoutin in the Amen Corner" tonight for a "Plantation Echoes" program entry (WBZ) and to the accompaniment of the Willard Robinson "Deep River" evangelists of rhythm.

Then too, there looms the large figure and vocal renown of Kate Smith in the immediate ozone offering. Kate makes known that her interpretation of Elder Solomon Lightfoot's theme song is something very special indeed. Thus and so the songbird of the south sees fit to sing the same, which is "Happy Am I" by name, as one of her vocal visitations (WAAB) between 10.30 and 11 o'clock tonight.

Best Tomorrow

10:00 A. M.—WNAC—Buddy Clark, songs.
10:15 A. M.—WEEI—The Morning Parade—a variety musicale.
11:00A. M.—WAAB—"Voice of the Feature Forecaster," outlining Sunday Advertiser reading highlights; also "Uncle Ted" Farm and Garden chat.
12:15 P. M.—WAAB—Along the Volga, Russian music.

Best Bets Tonight

2:30 P. M.—WEEI—Columbus Day Program.
7:30 P. M.—WEEI—Another sparkling "After Dinner Revue" attraction.
9:00 P. M.—WBZ—Listen to Leah Ray, singing with the "Listen to Harris" orchestra.
10:30 P. M.—WBZ—Sammy Liner's Melodious Music.
12:00 P. M. —WNAC — Jacques Renard's dance band on the air again.

"ISN'T DWIGHT FISKE THE FUNNIEST MAN?"
"BOY, I COULD LISTEN TO JANE FROMAN'S SINGING FOREVER!"

This Ear——That Air

By N. F. T.

Discoveries, there's my space theme for today. Consider the thought as a gesture of homage to the memory of the man who was willing to venture to the end of the earth and high seas to find out what he wanted to know. Columbus would have made a corking columnist.

Seriously for a minute, there's a striking Columbus Day program in the Down East four winds tonight that is quite worthy of your ear or two and mine. I refer to the Italian-American impression with which WHDH rides into upper reaches, come 8:30 P. M. In fact the ERA feature, taking advance information at its face value would seem to be as colorful a Columbus Day manifestation as there is on record locally. There's an arrangement of selections from the opera "Cristoforo Columbo" due, which tells about the discovery of dear old America. Scenes in Spain, where the intrepid Columbus was ridiculed by scornful courtiers of Queen Isabella's Court, will furnish an opening salute for what is to follow. Helene Norwood, the talented Boston microphone and concert soprano, sings in the role of Queen Isabella. Methinks the entire ensuing effort should score sharply.

DIAL DISCOVERIES

Getting back to the initial idea, it is revealed today that Glen Gray is the only big time broadcasting band boss who wagered wampum on the Tigers to win the World Series . . . Glen, of course, is a Detroiter by birth and rearing . . . Also, just made known, is the reason why we are not hearing the crack Mill Brothers quartet much lately. They are theater touring, right now in Philadelphia, starting next week for Akron, Ohio . . . Many famous actors of Broadway will attend the dramatic dial showing of "Seventh Heaven" next Sunday afternoon (WBZ) at 2:30, with John Boles and Miriam Hopkins heading the studio cast . . . Phil Saltman, top notch tickler of ivory keys, starts giving "Jazz Piano Lessons" through WEEI waves soon . . . Harry (Nick) Parkyakakas Einstein launches his Kane Furniture Company fooling (WNAC) with 10:30 tonight. Harry has twofold duties to discharge for the Kane folks now, being advertising manager of the whole works when he isn't provoking laughs with his comedy . . . Vic (Tattler) Whitman, the WEEI wit (even if he does crack wise concerning this column) has high hopes for his new "Whittlin' Club" creation. It's a typical countryman skit. Bob Burlen, Eddie Gisburne, Lew Whitcomb and Jim Hadfield have places in the cast. Having heard all about it, the bit strikes me as about as smart and original an opus as Hub program planners have conceived since the depression started depressing everybody . . . May the WEEI selling forces find an appreciative sponsor for it . . . Most gratifying of the calendrical discoveries is that if today fell tomorrow, or tomorrow fell today, this would be Friday the 13th. If that isn't exactly clear, just skip it.

Students of harmony at Boston University do not need to take notes in class, for Professor Raymond C. Robinson has written a text in which notes are already included.

NO REVULSION TOWARD GAMES OF CHANCE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
(Copyright, 1934, By Universal Service.)

New York, Oct. 12—Restrictions placed on trading in American stock exchanges reflects no popular revulsion toward outright gambling.

On the contrary, simultaneous with repression of dealings on the bourses, there has been legalization of race track betting and of lotteries.

M. S. Rukeyser

As a matter of fact, the tragedy of losses on stock exchanges inhered in the fact that participants did not think they were gambling. Even the shoe string trader was inclined to look upon himself as an investor.

From my viewpoint, there is an economic, if not a psychological, difference between speculation and gambling. The speculator deals in unavoidable risks inherent in the economic process, such as the size of the prospective wheat crop. If the speculator does not assume the risk, the farmer or some one else must. Gambling, however, entails the assumption of unecessary risks unrelated to the economic process, such as whether a flipped coin will fall on its head or its tail.

Be that as it may, the significant fact is that with the restrictions on speculation, there has been a recrudescence of gambling. The advocacy of a national lottery by the conservative party in England and by the city fathers in New York city indicates the trend.

Of course, parenthetically, it might be argued that lotteries for all their obvious evils might be a safer vehicle for gambling impulses than trading in securities and commodities, which are directly related to the effort of men to earn a livelihood, especially when speculation is carried on with borrowed funds, the repercussions go far toward upsetting general economic balance.

Gambling evidently satisfies a psychological need in giving a kick to people of low sensitivity.

Lotteries, according to the historical record, originated in the middle ages in Italy, when they were first employed in the connection with commodities when merchants got rid of their products by means of the drawing of lucky numbers. By the outset of the sixteenth century, such lotteries, which were stimulated by permissive interpretation of church law, had flourished extensively. Similar lotteries were established at the same time in the Netherlands, and then spread to France, Spain, Austria and Germany. It became fashionable for rulers to monopolize lotteries for their revenues.

The first record of a cash lottery was in Florence in 1530.

More than a century ago, moralists rebelled against lotteries. Accordingly they were outlawed in England in 1826; in Hesse in 1882; in France in 1836; in Sweden in 1840; Bavaria, 1861 and Switzerland 1865, but at the beginning of this century lotteries were still in existence in Prussia, Italy, Saxony, Hamburg, Spain, and Hungary.

In this country there were lotteries in Virginia in the 17th century. In 1776 the Continental Congress authorized a lottery for the benefit of the soldiers. Columbia University, then known as King's College, was partly finished by lotteries, and Harvard paid for some of its buildings in this manner.

By 1833 New York and Massachusetts had outlawed lotteries. In 1890 Congress forbid the use of the mails for the distribution of lottery tickets, and the famous Louisiana state lottery had to transfer its base of operations to Honduras.

In this country lotteries were discussed by the Legislatures in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Maine and Massachusetts, and it is understood legalization of lotteries will be proposed in the next sessions.

Thus, we are reminded that all change is not progress, but may well be retrogression.

Seemingly, the lesson of history is that each generation wants to learn by making its own mistakes.

Nation's Chief Business Men Are Listed

By B. C. FORBES

Which of them are regarded by other business men as the ablest, broadest, soundest?

Which of them would men of affairs like to have President Roosevelt call into council now that he is turning to practical, experienced men for advice?

B. C. Forbes

Forbes Magazine has taken a vote among industrialists, executives, bankers, railway, advertising, utility, mercantile leaders and others occupying responsible positions.

The names of those heading the poll, the names picked as preeminently suitable to co-operate with President Roosevelt in the capacity of an advisory cabinet or in any other way the Chief Executive may choose, will interest the President, will interest the industrial and financial world, will interest the public, here they are:

Owen D. Young, chairman, General Electric.

Alfred P. Sloan, president, General Motors.

Walter P. Chrysler, president, Chrysler Corp.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman, United States Steel.

Sewell L. Avery, president, Montgomery Ward.

Gerard Swope, president, General Electric.

Thomas J. Watson, president, International Business Machines.

James F. Bell, chairman, General Mills.

George A. Sloan, president, Cotton-Textile Institute.

Henry Ford.

General R. E. Wood, president, Sears, Roebuck.

William Green, president, American Federation of Labor.

James H. Perkins, chairman, National City Bank.

Andrew W. Robertson, chairman, Westinghouse Electric.

Instead of calling individuals haphazardly to Washington, President Roosevelt will hereafter know exactly which men are regarded as conspicuously equipped to render mature aid and guidance in solving the grave economic and allied problems confronting the country.

A vital need is for President Roosevelt to find feasible means to develop faith, optimism, courage among fillers of pay envelopes, investors, property-owners.

From conversations I have just had with men of affairs who lately have been in close contact with the President, I am inclined to think that industry and business and capital are likely to be subjected to fewer jolts hereafter, and that employers will muster up courage to act somewhat more aggressively, more helpfully, more constructively.

You Hear Him on the Radio

Jack Fisher . . . The pinochle player . . . When he isn't bandleading . . . Or yearning to be as great a conductor as Fabien Sevitsky . . . Who is his idol . . . And why not?

Jack has been fiddling since he was nine . . . And that's back in 1916 . . . When he began his studies . . . At the New England Conservatory . . . Under tutelage of Eugene Gruenberg . . .

And so Jack continued fiddling . . . Mamas usually having their way . . . At least in these things . . . But he found time to play football . . . Breaking a shoulder . . . And pleasing his Dad very much . . . But not for long . . . Because Jack recovered . . . And kept on fiddling once more.

Jack was born in Roxbury . . . On November 6, 1907 . . . And was graduated from Boston Latin School . . . Where he received a coveted prize . . . For excellence in music . . . And headed for law school . . . Which pleased his Dad . . . But again not for long . . . Because Jack quit for music . . .

Then Jack organized his own band . . . And placed it in a popular eating place . . .

Meanwhile he hates some things . . . Like tan shoes . . . And bridge . . . And golf . . . And cabbage, carrots and stringbeans . . . Which are not games . . .

Let Europe Battle—We'll Stay Out!

SCARCELY a month passes, in these troublous times, that does not confirm the wisdom of George Washington's advice to "AVOID FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS."

What may happen in Europe as a result of the bloody scene at Marseille none can tell.

It may mean war. All sane persons earnestly hope that it does not. But if Europe's jealousies and rivalries boil over into conflict, then let us Americans thank Heaven that we are OUT of it, and resolve to STAY OUT of it.

We have no concern with European affairs. We have every concern with our own.

We have enough alien enemies in our midst without going abroad to seek more. We have problems a-plenty to solve, without trying to solve foreign problems.

Our venture into foreign problems in 1917 killed thousands of fine young American boys, lost us billions of American dollars, brought us the contempt and hatred of all the other so-called "civilized powers."

Never again!

This is our country. Let us keep it safe for ourselves and for our children.

That was Washington's counsel, and it is counsel that, as long as we have held to it, has never guided us wrong, and always has guided us RIGHT!

On this Columbus Day, let us be resolved ALWAYS to prove ourselves worthy of the great nation made possible by the Discoverer and the Founder.

They would surely wish FIRST OF ALL to see us preserve it in peace and in liberty.

Gold From the Sea

It was surprising news the other day when American chemists announced they had succeeded for the first time in extracting gold from sea water.

It recalled the New England swindle of about three decades ago when a man collected from dupes hereabouts a considerable sum of money with the claim he had invented a machine that would extract gold from the sea.

There is, however, the equivalent of gold to be had from the ocean, as our fishermen well know. The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries learns that those who pursue the battling swordfish have been dumping it back into the waters at the rate of about $1,000,000 a year.

For now it is found that swordfish livers have great value. The Bureau says the oil from them is about 100 times as efficient in vitamines as cod liver oil.

Halibut oil only recently appeared in pharmaceutical markets as a rival to the extract of cod. The new oil is pleasantly named. If it tastes anything like swordfish, we're going to like it!

Go All the Way!

The County Ring is doomed in Massachusetts.

The best proof of this is the fact that candidates for county offices this year are seeking election on platforms that promise county reform.

Take, for example, the case of John Gordon Duffy, Cambridge councillor who wants to be the next Middlesex registrar of deeds. He says:

> "If county government cannot be eliminated immediately, the next best step is to reform the present system."

Such a program would be a very welcome beginning. It must be ONLY a beginning. Honest officials can lighten the burden of our present county set-up. But a real cure can only come through a thorough-going clean-up of the system.

Massachusetts voters and taxpayers, who want the kind of government they are entitled to, must not abandon the fight after a minor victory. For good government they must go all the way.

Housing Progress Now?

Bostonians interested in slum clearance, the elimination of sub-standard areas and general betterment of living conditions are encouraged by Mayor Mansfield's appointment of executive and advisory committees to work with Dwight L. Hoopingarner, associate director of the Federal Housing Corporation, in the formulation of a building plan for the city.

Wisely, the Mayor has selected experts for this work. His chairman is William Stanley Parker of the Boston Planning Board.

This board also furnished other members of the committee as did the Building Trades Council, the Real Estate Board, the Housing Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Architects, the State Bankers' Association and other groups.

These men understand the problem they face, and the best methods of solving it. Their recommendations can be expected to be sane and practical.

It is to be hoped that they will bring about a revival in building here. That will be the best possible sign of a returning prosperity that will be real and lasting.

25 Years a Judge

Headed by Governor Ely, Mayor Mansfield and numerous judges, lawyers of Greater Boston are preparing to honor Judge Marcus Morton as he rounds out 25 years as an associate justice of the Superior Court.

There will be a dinner at the Boston City Club, but more important and more satisfying to Judge Morton will be the many tributes from leaders of the bar.

There are few more valuable services that a man can perform for society than to preside at the bar of justice.

And when he brings to the bench the distinguished ability and unselfishness that have marked Judge Morton's career, he is indeed deserving of honor and respect.

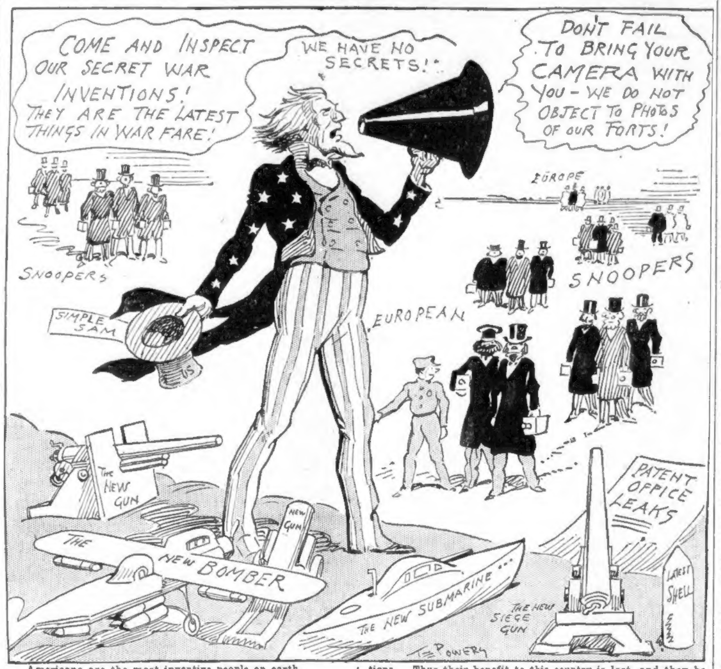
Here's a Laugh

The face of the motorist who runs out of "gas" and has to lug it afoot from the nearest filling station is apt to be red. And his language explosive. Yet stranger things happen.

The Coast Guard recently was called on to carry fuel to a trawler with dry tanks 137 miles off Boston Light.

Mr. Motorist, the next time YOUR tank runs dry, try calling the Coast Guard! The boys may not bring you much, but they'll tell you plenty!

Broadcasting--- -:- We Invent 'Em and Europe Takes 'Em -:- By T. E. Power



Americans are the most inventive people on earth.

They are also among the most careless people on earth.

Carelessness may be excused in peace. It cannot be excused in war, or in preparing for war.

As Mr. Powers shows, many American inventions for war are not safeguarded. They become the property of other nations. Thus their benefit to this country is lost, and they become dangers instead.

We trust the right Washington authorities see this cartoon, and clamp the lid down on military and naval secrets in future. America is defenseless enough as it is. It cannot afford to be MORE defenseless through the laxity of its own government.

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

GIVE ME TODAY

There's only one kind of a person who gives me a greater pain than the human who's always harking back to the Past, and that's the human who's always yearning toward the Future.

Right now our population is practically divided 50-50 between these two classes of pests.

Elsie Robinson

Everybody's either moaning for the Dear Old Days, and saying how heavenly things were before we all went to the dogs, or else they're drawing glowing pictures of what a swell place this is going to be after we've kicked everybody out, closed everything up and started all over again.

But do you hear anyone saying that they're strong for living RIGHT HERE AND NOW, even if everything is a mess and we don't know where we're going, or how we'll get there? No, you don't.

"I'M FOR NOW!"

But you're about to. For I'M FOR TO-DAY! You can have your Shining Futures and your Glorious Pasts. I'M FOR NOW!

Remember how Tennyson put it, when all the other Victorians were sogging around, just as most of us are doing now:

"Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay!"

Atta boy, Alfred; that was the stuff! Cathay, according to popular report, was a most enticing location, full of sighs, songs, silks and cinnamon. Not to mention sunsets, serenades, stars, seraglios and similar sentimental slop.

And London was merely full of soot and soreheads. But even though you were a poet, Al, you preferred one hour of reality to an eternity of dreams—and I'm voting your ticket.

No, I'm not being a Pollyanna. As a general thing, I can whine and wheeze with the best of them. But I've been fifty years collecting personal data on this Past and Future contest.

I lived in the Glorious Past while it was happening, and I was still doing business at the same stand when the Shining Future came along.

HUMAN PRODUCTS

And I'm telling you—neither of them is ever what it's cracked up to be—the reason being identical in both cases.

Meaning what? Meaning that both Past and Future are the product of plain, ornery human beings. And humans being what they are, there never was and there never will be a millenium.

All romantic reports to the contrary, the Dear Old Days were just days. To hear the Better Bleaters tell it, you'd think we all went around swapping rosy apples, planting hollyhocks and singing Christmas carols.

Piffle! we did nothing of the sort. We crabbed, snorted, snarled, blubbered and dragged our ears in 1894 exactly as we're doing in 1934.

And we told them, just as they're trying to tell you now, youngsters, that life had been Just One Long Sweet Song some 40 years before.

Likewise, the opposition party informed us that, when the Infamous Outrage of Our Present Rotten Regime was eliminated in the next few years, everything would be completely jake.

DIDN'T HAPPEN

Did it happen? Of course it didn't. But the liars went right on lying, and the world went right on believing them, as it always has and always will.

For, since the world began, lazy, cowardly, conceited humans have always tried to duck reality. And the ideal hide-outs for that purpose have always been the Past and the Future.

Dreams and Memories—what perfect escapes they offer from the tiresome pressure of today! You don't have to know anything, do anything, or be anything in either of them. No wonder they're our favorite, all-year-round resorts.

Well, you can have them, stranger. But as for me, Give me America—today! My Country, as is—battered, bewildered, busted, muddled, messy, fighting mad!

Yet, big stupe though she is, I'd rather be in her, with her, for her—sharing this heluva scrap—than have all the pipe-dream phooey of your never-never Cathay!

Marry-Go-Round -:- -:- By Helen Rowland

MEN ARE LIKE THAT!

Isn't Nature wonderful? HUMAN Nature, I mean!

Why is it—

That when a man is born with the temperament of an Othello and insists on being the only Big Moment in a woman's life, he invariably marries the sort of a girl for whom every other man falls—and who can no more help flirting than she can help breathing?

Helen Rowland

Why is it—

That a man who longs for a Real Home and three solid meals a day always picks out a helpless baby-faced doll, who can't boil a potato and who never gets up until noon? Or else selects a lady highbrow, and expects her to concentrate her eight-cylinder intellect on what to have for dinner and how to make good onion soup?

Why is it—

That the sort of man who regards marriage as a dictatorship and expects to be his wife's guide, mentor and oracle, invariably gets tied up matrimonially with the sort of girl who has always done her OWN thinking and who loathes being "advised," instructed or read aloud to.

TELL US WHY

Why is it that a man who has always been a good fellow and a mixer, who yearns for conviviality, likes to spend his holidays on the golf links and his Saturday nights at the hot spots, never fails to annex a human New England Conscience who censors his smokes, won't let him bring his friends to the house and firmly believes that cocktails are made of brimstone and that Sunday golf is moral suicide?

Why is it that an intellectual man, who sighs for inspiration and needs mental companionship above al' things, always drags to the altar some sweet, little dumb-bell with plenty of curls and curves but only one working brain-cell and that concentrated either on a gas range or a vanity case?

Why is it that when a man wants to be looked up to and admired as the Head of the Family, he always picks out a wife, who is either so independent or so efficient that she not only refuses to be his "Rib," but insists on being at least three-quarters of his backbone?

AN AVERAGE MAN

In brief, with a hundred and fifty-seven varieties of women to choose from, why does the average man always steer as straight for the woman who will make him most uncomfortable or most miserable as a tipsy driver steers for a telegraph pole?

Oh, well, it's this perversity of human nature (both masculine and feminine) which helps business recovery among the divorce lawyers and all the railroads that run to Reno.

But there never yet lived a man who didn't believe that he could marry ANY woman who happened to catch his fancy—and then remold her to his heart's desire!

THE TOO GOOD BOOKKEEPER

"Tell the story," I said,
So he lifted his head
From the books he was keeping for hire and would keep
So neatly and truly, till comes the last sleep.

"Well," he said, "when I started I wanted to be
The best in my line,
And since figuring seemed to be easy for me
And my writing was fine,
I began at this desk, counting profit and loss
In a way that became a delight to my boss.

"I was quick and correct and my records were true,
And whenever I'd say
That I wanted some larger employment to do,
With a small raise in pay,
The boss would persuade me to stay for a year
By making it plain that he needed me here.

"Then I married and children began to arrive,
And I never was free
To strike out for myself on a venture, so I've Spent my life here to be
The best bookkeeper known, but I think that I could Have done more for myself had I not been so good."

Human Side of the News; Opium Queen Executed

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

"Guilty!" "Guilty!" "Guilty!" The stony-faced judges, in military khaki rather than the robes of flowing black, pronounce the same verdict in the three cases before them. The prisoners, three women, are led out by a file of soldiers and placed against a wall in the courtyard.

A sharp command from an officer, and at 20 paces as many rifles speak the message of death to the Queen of the Opium runners, Mme. Chi Yuan-sze, and to two of her lieutenants.

Such a drumhead courtmartial would seem to indicate that the Chinese Republic means business in putting an end to the illicit drug traffic, while at the same time discouraging the use of opium where it is obtained through legalized channels.

IN ROOFLESS HOUSES

By a recent edict army officers, teachers and students, enrolled in the Nationalist party and addicted to the drug, are given a choice of either quitting it or the party.

The City of Canton has joined the movement with an ordinance which provides that those found guilty of excessive use of opium shall be compelled to live in houses without roofs at the mercy of the elements.

As short a time ago as 1917, China had all but ridden herself of the curse which has claimed its victims by countless millions and has enslaved the empire. The Empress Dowager in 1906 decreed that the growth, sale and consumption of the drug must cease within ten years.

In 1909 President Theodore Roosevelt brought about an international investigation and an agreement to assist the Chinese. By 1912 production in China had decreased 75 per cent, a remarkable achievement in view of the fact that it meant the ruin of countless thousands of poppy growers in the interior provinces.

Came the revolution and the World War. China was partitioned among the warlords and they, to swell their coffers, compelled the farmers to sew their fields to bumper crops of "the black rice."

The poverty and misery of the past 15 years turned the masses back to opium and at the same time made China again land for the drug smugglers. India and Turkey are large growers of the poppy and in 1934 alone Chinese customs agents seized contraband narcotics on 600 ships, 257 of which flew the British flag.

COOKED OVER LAMP

Opium is the milky juice of the unripened poppy, which is permitted to dry. What the Chinese smoke is a brownish extract called chandoo. This is cooked over a small lamp until it is the size of a pea, whereupon it is placed in the bowl of the pipe which is held over the lamp flame while the smoker puffs.

The drug problem is not peculiar to China, nor is that the only country attempting to stamp it out.

Far too much opium, heroin and morphine is smuggled into the United States to suit the Federal authorities. Stanley J. Fuller, American delegate to the League of Nations Committee for the Control of Narcotics, reports that twice as much smoking opium was seized here in 1933 as in the previous year. And it comes chiefly from China and Manchukuo.

Mr. Fuller made the charge that in 1933 Bulgaria imported enough anhydrous acetic acid to make 13,000 pounds of heroin or four times the legitimate needs of the world. This revelation led the Portuguese delegate to condemn the laxity of the Bulgarian government, saying, as he did, that six tons of heroin was enough to kill millions of people.

IN ILLICIT TRADE

To clinch the case Gen. T. W. Russell Pasha, Egypt's police commander and the outstanding foe of the drug traffickers, offered proof that ten Bulgarian factories were manufacturing heroin illicitly.

General Russell's great fight is against the factories of Europe. Already more than half a million Egyptians have been made drug addicts by the poison which comes from the "civilized West."

"The narcotic manufacturers of Central Europe," he says, "are making colossal fortunes by pouring their poisons into Egypt and the Near East. What do they care if they ruin thousands of human beings as long as they can fill their own pockets? Egypt is the victim, and will raise her voice against these poison factories. She has facts and not mere theories to support her case."

Geneva War Mongers

(Reprinted From the London Daily Mail)

ALREADY the swashbucklers of Geneva are breathing fire and slaughter in the sacred name of peace.

The League of Nations is pledged to "promote international co-operation."

It is doubtful if any similar body in the world's history (and there have been many) has succeeded in creating so much mischief in so short a time.

That statement is based on information given by Dr. Benes himself.

IN his review of the League's work, he placed on the debit side of its activities the disarmament conference and the Far Eastern situation.

Even the most ardent supporters of the disarmament conference have come to recognize its dangerous futility.

In connection with the Far East, it must not be forgotten how in the name of the League the Genevan Internationalists would have embroiled Great Britain in a quarrel with her old friend Japan.

The British people want peace, and they intend to keep it, whatever undertakings the British Government have entered upon in pursuance of the Genevan brand of "international co-operation."

They do not want to quarrel with anyone about the Saar or Austria or the Gran Chaco or anything else.

Wild horses will not drag them into any kind of adventure in which their interests are not vitally concerned.

Showing Their Hand

Organized opposition by police to all proposals for statewide police unification or co-ordination has hardly been a secret.

During the last session of the Legislature, many citizens found it difficult to approve of this attitude by which the police placed their own interests above those of the public they are sworn to protect.

But the most shocking revelation of the police campaign to junk this measure for public safety came at a dinner tendered by the Massachusetts Police Association to those legislators who opposed the unification plan.

Sergeant James F. Fee of Lynn was quoted as saying a list of these men had been posted in all police stations so that they would be taken care of when "they come in for a fix."

All right, if the police are ready to abuse their powers in this manner, let them have their lists, and let the legislators have their favors.

But let the voters take the same lists to the polls with them—lest they vote for one of these police-protected men by accident.

And the voters will be supported by all right-minded police officers. They know that the unification bill holds no threat against them. It insures the public greater PROTECTION, and it insures the officers greater SECURITY in their positions.

By the Rt. Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts.
